3 CARS HIT AT CROSSINGS, 2 DIE, 6 ESCAPE

2 Others Seriously Hurt as Passenger Train Strikes Auto at Crestline.

SHELBY COUPLE KILLED

4 Escape Injury In Accident Here; 2 Leap From Auto at Loudonville.

Two Shelby residents were killed, two others were hurt and six persons narrowly escaped injury or death in a series of three railroad crossing accidents in Mansfield and vicinity in the past 48 hours.

At least 20 persons died in the state from exposure or as the results of accidents on snow-covered roads. Five persons were injured in the Mansfield area, one seriously.

Victim's Sister Hurt.

Carl Remmy, 49, and his wife, Carrie, 40, of Shelby were killed instantly about 2 p. m. Saturday when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a southbound Big Four passenger train in Crestline. Critically injured in the crash was Mrs. Hazel Fried, 35, Shelby. Remmy's sister. Less seriously hurt was Miss Doris Reed, 27, of Shelby, a fourth occupant of the car.

Both of the injured are in Crestline Emergency hospital, where Mrs. Fried's condition was reported critical today. Her back was believed broken.

The car was carried a half mile down the tracks by the speeding train, an extra bound for Indianapolis. Bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Remmy were so badly mangled that identification was difficult, authorities said.

Hit on North Main Crossing.

Four Mansfield residents escaped injuries at 2 a. m. Sunday when their car was struck and dragged several feet by an eastbound Erie passenger train at the North Main street crossing. In the car were Lynn Velsy, 21 Bleeker street, driver; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Reder, 23 Daisy street, and Florence Michalski of 41 Bleeker street.

The train, which was slowing down for a stop at the Mansfield station, rolled the car over as it

Streets Deserted As City's Night Clubs Heed Order

Downtown streets deserted of the usual automobile traffic—were as bare as old Mother Hubbard's well-known cupboard last night as darkened night clubs with barred doors gave evidence of strict observance of at least a part of the city curfew ordinance, that of remaining closed all day Sunday.

Evening theater goers, who usually find parking places at a premium, were amazed to find the main streets practically deserted of parked cars.

A check of Mansfield's liquor spots revealed that not even one of the night clubs or restaurants dispensing liquor could be found open.

Apparently it had a good effect on the police department, too—not one arrest for intoxication had been made. Usually there is at least half a dozen, and where the police blotter is usually sprinkled with complaints of fighting and disturbances, no complaints had been registered this week-end, the records showed.

Government Wins Court Gold Verdict

Cardozo Writes Opinion Holding Action Didn't Exceed Authority.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The government succeeded in the supreme court today in its effort to escape paying interest on gold bonds that were called for redemption in advance of the maturity date.

The decision was written by Justice Cardozo. Justices Stone and Black had separate concurring opinions. Dissents were not announced immediately.

Cardozo is ill and his opinion was read by Chief Justice Hughes.

He said that the secretary of the treasury "did not act in excess of his lawful powers by issuing the calls without further authority from the congress than was conferred by the statutes under which the bonds were issued."

Ohioan's Suit.

The litigation was started by Robert A. Taft of Cincinnati, son of the late President and Chief Justice William Howard Taft; the estate of James J. Ransom of Des Moines; and Arthur Machen of Baltimore.

Taft contended a decision against the government would cost the treasury only $10,000,000 interest on $70,000,000 of gold bonds that had been called prior to maturity but still were outstanding.

Solicitor General Stanley Reed replied, however, that the treasury had outstanding $5,000,000,000 of gold bonds that had not yet been called. He added that if the treasury could call them in and refund them at a lower interest rate the potential saving would be $350,000,000.

Taft and H. Vernon Eney of Baltimore, counsel for Machen, contended the treasury could not legally redeem the bonds without paying off in gold, the specified medium of redemption. Since the government did not do this, they argued it must continue to pay interest until the maturity date.

FRESH CLUES

Paris Hears Death Syndicate Took Lives of 3 Others.

PARIS—(AP)—The names of a second Strasbourg woman and two more men were brought into the investigation of the murder-for-profit syndicate today as police became convinced there were more victims than the five which Eugene Weidmann confessed slaying.

While still further evidence was uncovered indicating that the missing Janine Keller, 30-year-old Alsatian, had been lured to Weidmann's St. Cloud villa where the young American dancer, Jean De Koven, met her death, an Alsatian named Sibenhaim informed police his wife had disappeared in October under mysterious circumstances.

Sibenhaim said his wife, like Mme. Keller, came to Paris from Strasbourg and was never heard from again.

The mystery slayings of two taxicab drivers were also brought into the investigation.

They'll Dance and Make Music In Yule Show

Here are four of the performers who'll appear in the midnight Community Christmas show at the Ohio theater Saturday. Upper left is Mike Bauderer, who pushes and pulls on his accordion, and makes catchy music come out of it. Upper right are the Claypool twins, who not only look alike, but dance together so well that you wouldn't know there were two dancers on the stage, if you didn't see them. Bottom is Mary Sabolich, who does on roller skates a lot of things Sonia Henjie does on ice skates. Mary does a tap dance on skates, and without skates can do a stirring Russian dance.

Folks, Yule Show's Going To Be Different This Year

It's Modern Production By Home Talent, But That Doesn't Mean It'll Be "Amateur."

This year, folks, the show is going to be different.

That's not Ed Wynn speaking, but the Three Muster-Cheers, talking about their Community Christmas show, to be held Saturday midnight at the Ohio theater.

The show is going to be different for a number of reasons. It's the first "modern" show they've staged. The other two shows, you recall, were revivals of old-fashioned melodramas.

But this year's show won't be amateur, in the usual sense of the word, even though it will be made up of home talent performers. It'll be just as good (much better) as any high class stage unit that shows here, and will have in addition, the "March of Time" which is going to "wow" the customers, no fooling.

Kibitzing 'Out of Order.'

Another thing that will make this year's show different will be the absence of kibitzing by the audience—it was a part of the show last year and the year before, but it won't be this year, because the type of entertainment is different. Nor will it be in order to "kid" the performers, which was perfectly all right in the past.

Oh, there'll be a lot of fun—chances to blow off steam, and make the rafters ring to the tune of "The Merry-Go-Round Broke Down" and "She'll Be Comin' Round the Mountain," and other rafter-vibrators.

Yep, the show's going to be different in a lot of respects—but it will be the same in one—it'll be a full house. So get your tickets early, and remember to have them reserved as early as possible after the reserved seat office opens at the Ohio theater Thursday noon. You have to have an exchange ticket to get a reserved seat, you know, and all seats are to be reserved.

The doors will open for the show at 11:30 p. m. Saturday.

GRID MOVIES AT TYGER BANQUET

Well, these and other notable scenes of the 1937 football season will be flashed on the screen at the football banquet to be tendered the Mansfield high school squad by The News-Journal at the Mansfield-Leland hotel Wednesday.

A sound film depicting the highlights of the outstanding collegiate games of the season will feature a variety motion picture football bill at the "Victory dinner."

The screen program will also include a short by Grantland Rice, "Pigskin Progress," which will show the development of the sport from its infancy.

War Vets to Purchase Device to Save His Life.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va.—(AP)—Seventeen-year-old Harold Artis of Portsmouth, O., waited hopefully at a hospital today for arrival of the "iron lung" which may save his life.

Artis, helping clear automobile wreckage nine days ago, was caught by a falling telephone pole and suffered paralysis which left him helpless.

W. E. Chilton, jr., grand chef de gare of the 40 and 8 of West Virginia, announced after appeals for a respirator had failed, that his organization, with the help of national headquarters, had made available funds for purchase of the apparatus.

LEADERS URGE SPEEDY VOTE ON WAGE BILL

Administration Aids Hope For House Decision By Middle of Week.

FACES STIFF BATTLE

Lawmakers Doubtful Measure Will Be Given Final O. K. Before Adjournment.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Administration leaders urged the house today to vote on the wage-hour bill by mid-week, thereby hoping to send it to the White House before the special session ends.

Even if the house passes the controversial measure quickly, much behind-the-scenes work remains before President Roosevelt can sign it.

A joint committee of senators and representatives must compose differences between the house bill and one which the senate approved last summer. Some legislators expressed doubt this could be done by Dec. 22, the adjournment date.

Faces Severe Test.

Although pressing for an early decision, friends of the measure admitted it faces a severe test in the house.

The bill came to the floor after 218 members signed a petition to free it from the rules committee, which had blocked action for nearly six months.

The measure is designed to bring about minimum wage and maximum hours in industries engaged in interstate commerce. As it now stands, the minimum wage could not be set higher than 40 cents an hour, nor the maximum work week at less than 40 hours.

Rep. Dockweiler (D-Calif.) said he would offer a substitute which would write the wage and hour standards into law as proposed by the American Federation of Labor, instead of leaving them for future determination.

On the other hand, the bill as it stands has the support of the CIO. Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, a CIO affiliate, told house members that if they opposed the committee bill the fact would "not be forgotten next year" at election time.

Major Controversy.

A prospective major controversy was over the method of administering the proposed law. Seeking to satisfy the A. F. of L., the committee changed the senate's provision for administration by an independent board to provide for a single administration under the labor department.

SNOW'S ON WAY

It's Forecast For Tonight; Mercury Hits New Low.

The erratic cold wave which dropped the mercury to one above zero in Mansfield early today for the lowest reading of the season and the coldest Dec. 13 on record, was on its way out today, but the forecast promised more snow tonight and Tuesday.

After releasing its grasp on the city yesterday when the temperature climbed to 25 degrees, the cold descended again last night to bring the near zero reading. The mercury, however, was back to 25 again at noon today.

Higher temperatures were reported throughout the nation as scattered sections dug out of snow drifts and continued relief work after a week of unseasonal cold and snow.

REGRET 'MISTAKE' THAT KILLED ONE AND INJURED 15

Japan Says Naval Airmen Couldn't See Flags On American Vessel, Thought It Was Chinese; 12 Europeans On 'Missing' List Found By British.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(AP)—President Roosevelt today conveyed to the emperor of Japan an expression of his deep concern over the bombing of the American gunboat Panay.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(UP)—Japanese Ambassador Hirosi Saito called at the state department today to express regrets at the bombing and sinking of the U. S. gunboat Panay.

BULLETIN

SHANGHAI—(UP)—Only nine Americans of the crew and refugees aboard the United States gunboat Panay when it was sunk in the Yangtze river by Japanese air bombs, had been accounted for tonight.

SHANGHAI—(AP)—The Japanese navy tonight accepted full blame for the warplane bombardment and sinking of the United States gunboat Panay and two Standard Oil company ships, and avowed "profoundest regret" for the "terrible mistake."

One American seaman died of injuries from the bombardment by Japanese warplanes indiscriminately strafing all craft in the Yangtze about 25 miles above Nanking.

Fifteen of 54 survivors aboard the Panay were injured. Seventeen at first were reported missing, but advices by the British gunboat Bee said tonight that 12 Europeans had been sighted on the Yangtze river shore. They possibly were survivors of the Panay but definite confirmation was not at once forthcoming.

The Japanese flyers which bombed the ships, said Rear Admiral Todao Honda, Japanese naval attache in China, were unable to see the foreign flags and believed the craft to be Chinese.

This resulted in the "terrible mistake, for which the Japanese navy feels profoundest regret," the admiral said.

Three naval aircraft participated in the attack, Admiral Honda said.

"The flyers returned, proudly reporting achievement of the bombing of this concentration of ships," he continued. "But the feeling of accomplishment turned to regret and sadness when they learned their mistake."

The Japanese navy, he said, was preparing to punish those responsible for attacking the American craft, "identity of the flyers naturally being known. Action will be taken after investigation.

Japanese, however, pleaded ignorance of most of the details of the attack.

"The flyers didn't notice what happened after they observed their bombs found their objectives," it was explained.

Admiral Honda explained that the flyers were aware American and other foreign craft were "somewhere in the vicinity above Nanking," but were not aware of the specific location of the Panay and the others.

"The attack occurred at 1:30 p. m. Sunday (12:30 a. m. Saturday)" the Japanese admiral related. "At 10 a. m. Monday, United States naval officials in Shanghai requested the Japanese navy to search for the Panay, giving us the location where they thought the gunboat was located. We examined the records of yesterday's air raids and found with dismay that where the Panay and the Standard Oil craft were located coincided with the scene of the air attack. We quickly concluded they were the mistaken objects of our bombs."

"The Japanese navy with the utmost sincerity is willing and prepared to bring about solution of this unfortunate incident, and hopes no extravagant reports of it will be circulated," the admiral told newspapermen.

Ordered to Give Aid.

"Both naval and military authorities have ordered forces in that area to render whatever assistance is possible to the victims, and also to withhold hostilities against Chinese thereabouts, thereby lessening the danger to the survivors. In addition, the navy is sending a warship to the scene with utmost haste and also is dispatching aircraft tomorrow with relief workers. The navy is prepared to assure Americans, should they desire that their own

U. S. Maps Vigorous Action In Sinking of Gunboat

WASHINGTON—The United States will make vigorous representations to the Japanese government over the sinking of the U. S. S. Panay and bombing of three merchant vessels as soon as all essential facts concerning the incident can be ascertained, authoritative sources said today.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull, confronted by the most serious situation in U. S.-Japanese relations since the start of the conflict in the Far East, called a conference of all his state department advisers to consider the bombings.

Just how far the proposed representations would go could not be learned immediately. It was known, however, that officials considered the destruction of the Panay the most serious incident which has arisen in the Japanese-Chinese conflict.

It was believed the American protest would call for some sort of "satisfaction" as well as reparations for the loss of life and the destruction of the ship.

Demands for such "satisfaction" already were being voiced by members of congress. The Panay incident, it was believed, would touch off vigorous debate in congress of the whole Far Eastern situation, the neutrality law, the administration's policy and attitude toward the Far East.

Christmas Fund Benefits As 600 Join In Community Sing

An audience of more than 600 persons sang lustily, three amateur performers won $40 in cash prizes and approximately $50 was added to the coffers of the Community Christmas fund Saturday night at the benefit amateur show at Senior high school auditorium, staged by the Junior Association of Commerce.

The show was sponsored by the younger business and professional men of the city, with the funds to be divided between the Community Christmas Fund and the Friendly House. The junior group will arrange a Christmas treat for Friendly House children.

The show was a combination amateur night and "community sing." James Crum presided as master of ceremonies and led the singing.

There were three cash prizes offered, with 15 acts participating in the amateur night contest. First prize of $25 went to Richard W. Sparks, 15, Mansfield high schol boy, for a piano solo; $10, second prize, went to Ralph Smith, ventriloquist of Galion, and $5 to 11-year-old Joan Beard for her singing "What I Want for Christmas." Runners-up were the Jonathan Glee club, under the direction of Albert Arnold, and Miss Edna Waddell, 17, a blues singer.

Other contestants, all of whom won a big hand from the audience, were the Dixie Ramblers; Peggy Hess in a rope dance; Jack Spicer, hillbilly song and banjo; Ethel Poulos, piano solo; Ada Mae Harbaugh, soprano; J. nes Ross, tap dancer; Charles Izenour, baritone; Joseph Atton, whistler; Betty Jean Wynn, tap dancer; Jean Schill and Marjorie Crowl, eccentric tap dancers, and the Duda Sax band.

Properly Used Rouge Will Not Injure

By GLADYS GLAD

THE GULLIBLE males back in the Cavalier period, I am told, firmly believed that their women folk didn't use rouge on their cheeks. I suppose if they'd really known half the tricks their femmes were practicing, the poor lads would have been exceedingly shocked. In those days, you see, rouge was not a well-known cosmetic. But the girls of that age had their own way of tinting their cheeks. And the little trick they practiced to obtain attractive cheek coloring was to dip a bit of red silk in wine, and then rub it on their cheeks.

There are still some women, even today, who don't use rouge. Not because they have any moral scruples about it, as was the case in previous generations, but because, somehow or other, they have the fallacious idea that rouge may prove harmful to the skin.

No good brand of rouge really will harm the complexion, if the skin is properly prepared for its reception and thoroughly cleansed after its use. As a a matter of fact, rouge is really one of the purest cosmetics made.

It is a good idea, just the same, to apply a basic coating of powder to the skin before applying dry rouge, in order to prevent any of the color from entering the pores. Of course, the chief reason why it is wise to apply a basic coating of powder first, then the rouge, and then make a final dusting of powder, is because this process makes the finished work appear like nature's own handiwork. The natural coloring in the cheeks, you know, is the blood showing through a transparent layer of skin. And the final dusting of powder gives the rouged cheeks this same natural appearance, for it tones down the rouge and makes it seem like the healthful flush on a well-kept skin.

There is another advantage, too, in rouging in this manner. If you apply the rouge directly to your skin the color may gather in your pores. Then, when this color comes into contact with the natural oil of the skin, it will give a blotchy, rough appearance to the cheeks. A basic coating of powder will prevent the rouge from sinking deep into the pores, and will eliminate the possibility of any such blotchiness.

You must always be sure to cleanse the pores of any accumulation of color after using rouge, however. The best plan is to use a good cold cream first, and then to scrup the skin thoroughly with a bland soap and tepid water, using a coarse washcloth. And as the final step, a good astringent should be applied in order to close the pores and tone up the skin.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Dicky was half way to the kitchen door by the time I took down the telephone receiver. His wager of "dollars to doughnuts" that Philip Veritzen was on the other end of the wire had been made as he passed me, and even as I made my invariable telephone salutation, "Yes?" with the upward inflection, I saw him stop Katie's rush toward the telephone from the kitchen.

"Mrs. Graham is answering, Katie," I heard him say, and the gesture which accompanied the words had the effect of "shooing" her back to the kitchen.

"Is Mr. Noel Veritzen there?" I heard a feminine voice say, and deduced that in true great executive fashion, Mr. Veritzen was remaining in his room waiting for his call to be put through by the hotel operator.

My resolution to "double for Sapphira" hardened, and I answered firmly.

"No, he is not here."

"Do you know where he is?"

"I haven't the slightest idea."

"Have you any idea when I will be able to reach him?"

"Not before late tomorrow night, I'm afraid."

"Is Mrs. Veritzen there, or can we reach her before her husband returns?"

"I am sorry, but I must answer 'no' to both questions."

Battle Brewing.

"Will you please hold the line a second?" she queried, and I knew that she was relaying the information—or rather misinformation—which I had given her, to Philip Veritzen on another line.

"Sorry to keep you waiting," she said perfunctorily a few seconds later. "Mr. Veritzen wishes to speak to you."

Mary and Noel had come so close to me that I could hear their quick breathing. I waved them back frantically, and Dicky, taking an arm of each of them, herded them against the farthest door of the hall in which Mother Graham, a tense, excited figure, was already standing.

"Who is talking?" Philip Veritzen's crisp, angry accents struck disagreeably upon my ears. I braced myself for battle.

Anger Restrained.

"Oh! Good evening, Mr. Veritzen!" I said in my most dulcet tones. "This is Madge Graham. It is so nice to hear your voice. I am so sorry the children aren't here."

"That isn't why I am disturbing you," he said, his voice frigid, but tense, as though he was putting great constraint upon himself. "I might have known they would be foolish enough to go out somewhere when they know Noel has that long drive in front of him. But I wanted to make sure that he is starting by daylight tomorrow. He must be back here by tomorrow afternoon. But unless I misunderstood her, the operator tells me you don't know where he is. I am sure she must have misunderstood. Noel would never dare to disobey my commands so flagrantly."

I relieved my feelings by shaking a fist at the medieval old tyrant at the other end of the wire. Then I spoke measuredly, sacchariney.

Tells of Accident.

"Oh!. I am sure he had no idea of disobeying you. You see there was an accident to his car."

"An accident! What kind of accident?. I can tell by your voice that no one was seriously hurt."

"Oh no! Not a scratch!" I assured him gaily. "Indeed, neither of them was in it at the time."

"Would you mind?—" His voice held exquisite courtesy which thinly veiled exasperation — "telling me just what has happened?"

I explained the broken clutch in detail, but he barely waited for me to finish.

"Why wasn't I informed at once about this accident?" he demanded, the veil of courtesy disappearing.

"Why! You see Noel and Mary weren't here when it happened," I explained, "and I really didn't think it was my place to bother you about so trivial a thing."

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, Dec. 14.

A very lively and exciting day is forecast from the predominant planetary configurations. This may be in connection with a sudden disruption in the affairs, involving removal, change, travel and new interests and associations. There may be much benefit from new contracts, agreements or writings, and there should be surprising culminations in the private life. But be discreet.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of great excitement and commotion, with change, journeys or removals in connection with advantageous new contracts or agreements. Writings, publicity and promotion should flourish. The purely private life also should have its reactions and adventures, but be discreet in these.

A child born on this day may be very talented in an original and outstanding way, although it may be restless, wayward and given to change, adventure and innovation.

My Neighbor Says:

Before watering small seedlings planted in a box in the house, cut a piece of tissue paper large enough to cover top of box and sprinkle with water until it soaks through paper. Seedlings will not then be washed up when watered.

If fish is brushed lightly with salad oil before being rolled in cracker crumbs or meal it will fry a rich brown.

Woman Asks For Friends, Amusement

By VIRGINIA LEE

"I THINK God must have intended a little fun for me," writes a woman who signs herself AN UNCERTAIN MOTHER.

This woman now is merely 24, but has been married for seven years and has two children. She loves her husband and adores the children, but is very unhappy because her husband is one of those people who does not want to have anyone invade the sanctity of his home. Work, eat, sleep, seems to be his rule of life and he is perfectly happy to follow it.

Now Uncertain Mother had a very hard life prior to her marriage, had been desperately poor, lived in dirt and squalor, with not enough to eat or a decent home to live in. She now has a pleasant home which she keeps "like a palace", and would be happy, she thinks, if her husband would encourage her to have friends whom she could visit and who would come to the house.

* * *

UNCERTAIN MOTHER:

It is natural for you to want to have friends and to entertain in your home, but don't you think you are making too much fuss about this one thing? After all, compared with your early life you are living in luxury. You have a good home and a husband you love and two adorable children. You are a rich woman. And suppose you allow yourself to become so unhappy because of your husband's unsociable attitude that you break up that home. What happiness would you get then from life?

There is always something to mar perfect happiness, you know, and it would be interesting to know why your husband is so unsocial and to try to help him overcome it. Maybe he was ridiculed by other children when he was young; possibly he felt they didn't like him, and so learned to get along by himself. In consequence he does not feel happy when people are about, and prefers to hide himself in his home with his wife, whom he feels loves him, and his children. Now I wonder if you could help him there. Make him feel that people like him and want his companionship. When anyone comes, even if he refuses to notice them at first, keep appealing to him, and showing him that you rely upon him to be with you to entertain them. His case is not hopeless, according to your letter. He almost broke down once and took part in a game. Get him to play games with you and the children, and then, maybe if your sister comes in take her in, and gradually others—this young boy friend of your sister.

Don't be discouraged if you don't succeed at first. Keep at it. He is suspicious and a little jealous of outsiders, but if you keep on you may overcome it. It is worth trying.

If you can't do it, why not have a few women friends that you can enjoy when he is at work? Have fun with the children and with your husband, just you four, and make up your mind that life is lovely just because there are the four of you and a happy home.

* * *

I once attended a luncheon, and a man came in late and sat near me and almost at once began railing about marriage and what a wretched institution it is. It was easy to see that his marriage had gone on the rocks, and his remarks about women made you feel very sorry for his former wife, and convinced you that even if she wasn't all a wife should be she was not wholly to blame.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

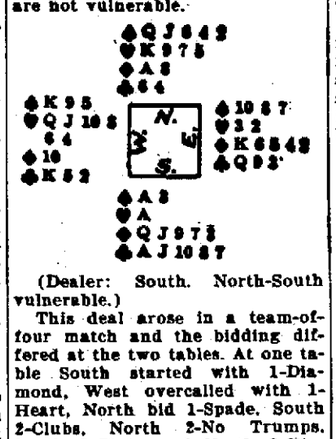
"The Authority on Authorities"

DOUBLE DUTY DONE

LOW PENALTY doubles serve many purposes besides merely punishing hapless overcalls. Most important is the fact that they show secure stoppers in the suit. The time this helps especially is when your side is vulnerable and would therefore ordinarily prefer to make its own game than secure a small set against opponents who are not vulnerable.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

This deal arose in a team-of-four match and the bidding differed at the two tables. At one table South started with 1-Diamond, West overcalled with 1-Heart, North bid 1-Spade, South 2-Clubs, North 2-No Trumps, South 3-Clubs and North 3-Diamonds. Reading this as merely a preference for diamonds and having no particular fit for his partner's spades, South decided to pass this.

At the other table, however, South received more information from North and was able to land in a game contract. After South's 1-Diamond and West's 1-Heart, North doubled. South now bid 2-Clubs, North 2-Spades and South tried 2-No Trumps, which North took to 3-No Trumps.

Had North not doubled, indicating stoppers in hearts as well as in the spades which were later shown, it would have been impossible for South to have reached this contract with his singleton heart.

Tomorrow's Problem

What is the correct bidding on this deal?

Davis-Howard Film.

Bette Davis and Leslie Howard, the hit team of "Of Human Bondage," head the cast of the comedy, "It's Love I'm After," current attraction at the Madison theater. The picture is a tale woven around the life of a great Shakespearian actor and his leading lady. At times madly in love with each other, they are sorely beset by professional jealousies which serve to turn their ardor into hate. Scene stealing is their favorite pastime. Things progress rather smoothly until Miss Davis becomes annoyed when Howard begins paying particular attention to a wealthy society girl.

Comedy Film at Ohio.

The new comedy-romance, "Nothing Sacred," co-starring Carol Lombard and Fredric March, graces the silver screen at the Ohio the first half of the week. March, as the ace reporter of a New York paper, of which Walter Connolly is the managing editor, brings the girl to Gotham. And then they make up a hoax that turns New York inside out. Others in the cast are Charles Winninger and Maxie Rosenblum.

The Correct Marking of Stationery

By EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: I believe you have advised that when letter paper is marked with name and full post office address the name should appear with title. Please tell me what to do in my case. As you see from the postmark and address given in this letter, I am living in a South American country. Most of my letter writing is to friends in the States, and for this reason I think my paper should carry a full address. However, to permit Mrs. John Kane on this paper seems too business like to send to friends.

Answer: Every rule of etiquette has come into being because it serves a useful purpose or contributes to beauty. On paper you are to use when writing to your friends, it is certainly not necessary to tell them your name but it is necessary to them to know (and for you repeatedly to tell them) your full post office address. Plainly then it would be proper to print this and leave your name off, or put a monogram (or initials) at the left of the sheet and the full address at the right, either die-stamped or printed. And then order separate paper printed with full name and title and address for business letters or for whenever your full name is necessary.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you tell me what is customary when writing to someone who has just lost a dear relative? In this case the husband lost the relative but the wife is my friend, so should I address the note to Mr. and Mrs., or to whom?

Answer: Ordinarily a note of sympathy is addressed to the one directly in mourning. On the other hand, it would be quite proper to write to the wife and ask her to tell her husband how sorry you are.

Schmeling to Test Rusty Ring Weapons Against Thomas In Garden Tonight.

By DREW MIDDLETON

NEW YORK —(AP)— Harry Thomas, the willing whetstone for Max Schmeling's dulled ring weapons, is in the position of a man going over Niagara Falls in a barrel. Nine chances out of ten he won't make it—but, boy, if he does!

If it were not for the memories, ever green, of the Braddock-Baer, Schmeling-Louis and Farr-Louis form reversals, the general public would take tonight's fight between Thomas and Schmeling lightly. However, those three imbroglios have made the fistic clients wary and curious.

Tub-thumping which has boomed extraordinary new qualities in Thomas' ring repertoire must be ignored. If he were as great as some would have you believe he would have been fighting top bouts long ago. But the fact remains that Schmeling has chosen no second-rater for his first test since Louis. Thomas is a genuine tough article.

Schmeling brings a war worn but trusty armament into the ring. If he is tuned anywhere near the fighting pitch he was when he spattered the Louis legend in the Yankee stadium it would be no contest. But there is more than a hint that the black Uhlan is far from his top form.

Max withstood the shots of one of the game's hardest punchers in Louis. Therefore, his friends say, he has nothing to fear from Thomas, whose punches cannot equal the steam the Louis maulies carry. But should Schmeling's legs show signs of age, it should be a long hard bout against a fighter young enough to go 15 rounds at top speed

Rams Draft Ream, Zarnas

COLUMBUS—(UP)—Eight Ohio collegians who ended brilliant undergraduate grid careers recently today had been drafted for next season by teams in the National Professional Football league.

At the annual draft meeting at Chicago Saturday, five Ohio State aces and one each from Western Reserve, Baldwin-Wallace and Case were selected by the pro teams.

The Detroit Lions took two members of the Bucks' 1937 combine. Ralph Wolfe, center, and Dick Nardi, halfback.

The Cleveland Rams secured Charley Ream, bulky end the Chicago Bears obtained Gus Zarnas, rugged guard, and Philadelphia made a successful bid for Jim McDonald.

Ray McKovsky, Case's hard driving fullback, was drafted by the Chicago Bears; the Pittsburgh Pirates took Bill Krause of Baldwin-Wallace, and Phil Ragazzo, Western Reserve's great tackle, went to the Green Bay Packers.

Mansfield Quintet Plays at Shelby Saturday; Idle Friday Night.

THE first of four games scheduled with former N. C. O. conference rivals will be played by the Tygers of Mansfield high school Saturday night when they invade Shelby for a tussle with Coach John Boyer's Whippets. Mansfield is idle Friday.

The only basketball contracts the Tygers hold with former conference foes are home-and-home agreements with Shelby and Ashland.

Shelby dropped its first two games of the season, but Coach Russ Murphy is not underrating the Whippets, who usually rise to the occasion when they meet Mansfield.

Murphy was well satisfied with the showing made by the Tygers last week when they defeated Columbus South, 23 to 21, and it is likely that he will keep the lineup of Lewis, Hallabrin, Dials, Lyons and Scott intact for the Shelby game.

Hot Games on Card For County Followers.

THIS week's games will provide followers of Richland county league quintets a better line on the contenders.

One of the major games Friday night will pit Lucas against Butler. Butler is now tied with Ontario for the league lead, but Lucas is right behind with three victories and one defeat.

Another important game sends Madison against Ontario on the defending champions home floor. This game will undoubtedly decide the Rams' title chances. Madison has won one game and lost one.

In the other league game Friday night, Union performs at Lexington. Butler goes to Bellville for a league tilt Saturday night, while Madison engages a non-league foe at Iberia.

Conference Race to Open Friday Night.

TOO TOUGH FOR BEARS

Baugh's Aerials Win Pro Title For Washington Redskins at Chicago, 28-21.

By EARL HILLIGAN

CHICAGO—(AP)—Professional football doffed its helmet today to "Slinging Sammy" Baugh.

Older and long-established stars of the gridiron's toughest class—the National Professional league—paid tribute to the youth whose passing performance yesterday stamped him the greatest aerial marksman in the game.

"One Man Show."

Earl (Dutch) Clark, Detroit Lion's brilliant playing coach, and Ray Flaherty, Washington coach, agreed that Baugh's passing in Washington's 28 to 21 victory over the Chicago Bears for the championship "was the greatest one-man show ever put on by professional football."

There's a story behind the sensational rise of the Texas youth as the most brilliant freshman ever to crack the pro league ranks. It's the story of a boy who'd much rather run with the ball than hurl a touchdown pass, but who, once he knew he could throw a football, was determined to throw it better than anyone else.

All one summer before his sophomore year at Texas Christian, Baugh practiced throwing footballs at an old tire he hung from a tree in the backyard of his Sweetwater, Tex., home.

Yesterday, some 15,000 fans saw the result of those long hours of drilling as Baugh pitched three spectacular touchdown passes which ran the Bears dizzy and the league pennant up the Redskin flagpole.

Washington scored first on a smash by Cliff Battles, with Baugh's short passes setting the stage. The Bears tied the count on Mander's 10-yard smash and want ahead late in the first period on a touchdown pass from Bernie Masterson to Manders. Then, after a comparatively dull second period in which Manders twice missed long field goal tries, Baugh went to work.

Passes To Millner.

He passed 20 yards to Wayne Millner, who ran 35 yards to score. The Bears came back to go ahead on a short touchdown pass from Masterson to Manske, but Baugh enabled the Redskins to tie the score when he passed 28 yards to Millner, who ran 50 yards to score. The winning touchdown came late in the third stanza, Baugh hurling a 20 yard aerial to Ed Justice, who scampered 15 yards over the Bear goal line.

Baugh hurled 34 passes, making good on half of them for a total gain of 352 yards. In addition, he ran well when called on and played a big part in ruining a last-period aerial attack by the Bears.

Washington Gridsters Split $6,325.25.

"RUBE" BENTON KILLED

Former Big League Hurler Dies of Accident Injuries.

DOTHAN, Ala.—(AP)—John C. "Rube" Benton, former Cincinnati Red and New York Giant southpaw who began his professional baseball career 27 years ago, is dead, victim of an automobile collision in which one other man was killed.

Benton, who was 47, died last night of a fractured skull and chest injuries suffered when the automobile in which he and Delay Lee Clark, 33, of Eufaula, Ala., were riding collided head-on with another car near Ozark, Ala., Saturday night.

RETAINS CENTER JUMP

AKRON — (AP) — National basketball league's executive board, meeting Sunday at Cleveland, reiterated the league's action of last November to retain the center jump, but voted to adopt the 1937-38 intercollegiate rules in all other instances excepting to permit four time outs during a game.

Great Mephisto, Ex-Champ, Tops "Can Show" at Armory Tonight

Great Mephisto . . . Ex-champion of the World.

Can of Fruit or Vegetables to Be Admission For Women and Children.

WOMEN and children desiring to do their bit toward making Christmas a happier occasion for the Mansfield unfortunate will get another chance tonight.

Promoter Tim Nolan and the Quality Athletic club tonight will join with Mansfield theaters in staging "can shows" for the Christmas baskets for needy families.

Cans For Admission.

Nolan announces that a can of fruit or vegetables will serve as admission for all women and children at tonight's wrestling show at the Armory.

BLAKE

This will be the first of two "can shows" Nolan will stage for the "Muster-Cheers," sponsors of the annual Mansfield Christmas shows.

Tonight's show features the man who has the whole country talking about him, the Great Mephisto, red clad unknown of the wrestling world. His appearance promises to lure the largest crowd of the season.

Mephisto, twice lightheavyweight champion of the world, will meet George Becker of New York City, young "German Bomber," in a two out of three falls match with an hour and a half time limit.

Mephisto is a brilliant wrestler, but so is Becker. Should Dame Fortune smile upon George tonight, the unusual sight of a Mephisto defeat is apt to be witnessed by Mansfield fans.

Co-headlines Card.

Another match of more than passing importance in the lightheavyweight tournament now being staged here will send Bob Blake, fiery blond from Columbus, against "Babe" Kasoboski, rangy young Polish lightheavyweight from Toronto, Ont.

This match will co-headline tonight's show and is also carded for two out of three falls with an hour and a half time limit.

Opening the program at 8:30 p. m. will be a one fall, 20 minute affray in which Joe Wheeler of Cleveland will grapple the Hungarian flash Joe Magyar.

BALTIMORE — (U.P.) — The basketball team of Potomac State Teachers college, Keyser, W. Va., drilled hard for its game with Loyola last night, but had its scoring attack stopped dead—by the police.

Battle in Headline Game on Opening Program of City Class A League at Senior High; Elks Meet Canzols in Opener.

By CHARLES MARTIN

YUNCKER SPORTS and Westinghouse Electric quintets hold the spotlight tonight when they tangle in the feature attraction on the City Class A league's opening program at the Senior high hardwood.

Two new entries, the Elks club and Ira D. Ling's Canzols, inaugurate the circuit's season by clashing in the initial tilt at 7:30 p. m. Only two games will be played each night.

Sports Race Favorites.

The Yuncker's outfit, composed of veteran City league stars, and led by three members of last year's championship Dominion Electric team will enter the league race at the pre-season favorite to grab the title relinquished by the Dominion.

Vern Jones of Westinghouse has three regulars returning from last year from which to build a strong club around. The holdovers are Bob Shade, Howard Poole and George Bosko. Missing from the Westies' lineup this season will be Bob Bride, Harry Ross and Steve Voelker.

Canzols' Lineup.

The Canzols will make their debut with a roster including Howard Patterson, Dave Arbaugh, George Hummel, John Schuster, Leroy Smith, Joe Atton, Willard Lockhart, John Horvath and Fred Buzard.

Against this outfit, the Elks will use such players as Adam Brandt, Jim Wallance, Gene Brandon, Russ Hoff, Noel Morgan, Jerry King, Jerry Dent, Sturges and Wineland.

Thompson Sets Record, Trials By One Stroke.

CORAL GABLES — (AP) — Jimmy Thomson, the Shawnee, Pa., siege gun, was the man to watch today as the nation's golfing expeditionary force went over the top in the last offensive of the $10,000 Miami Biltmore open.

Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill.—the 54-hole leader with 209 after yesterday's par-shattering round — led the charge but it was Thomson, who cracked the course record with a 65, to whom the galleries looked. Thomson whacked six strokes off par and started the final drive a single stroke back of Revolta, who ground out a steady 70 to stay on top.

STUDIES MOTION FOR THIRD TRIAL

Crawford Jurist Hears Pleas Here of Clevelander, Loser In $5,000 Damage Suit.

Common Pleas Judge C. U. Ahl of Crawford county today had under consideration the defense motion for a third trial of a $5,329 damage suit brought against M. L. Eckman of Cleveland, by Miss Ruth Schaaf of near Lexington.

Judge Ahl sat on the Richland county bench Saturday during a hearing of the arguments of William W. Weldon and Henry P. Huston, attorneys for Eckman, seeking a new trial.

The defense counsel contended that Miss Schaaf, who won a jury verdict for $3,000 in common pleas court a month ago, related three different accounts of the automobile accident in which she lost her front teeth in July, 1935. The accident occurred near Lexington.

She blamed Eckman, her escort on the night of the accident, for her injuries, claiming that he lost control of the car in which they were riding when he took his hands from the steering wheel and attempted to put his arms around her.

Eckman won a new trial in October, 1936, after a jury awarded Miss Eckman $1,329 for the loss of her teeth.

Women Smuggling Guns To Assist Arab Rebel Forces

LONDON — (INS) — Secret caravans of black-robed Bedouin women are smuggling arms from Transjordan to Palestine by night to assist the Arab uprising against the British administration in the Holy Land, according to reports received here today.

Hidden beneath the flowing robes of these night marchers are rifles and revolvers, cartridges and bombs that have been smuggled from Abyssinia to be sold in Palestine for a fortune.

Slipping down from the Transjordan hills on moonless nights, the women begin their wracking week's march to the hills of Jerusalem while their husbands ride on camels or donkeys.

In the secret strongholds of the caves used by the Turks in their retreat before Allenby in the World war, these travel-stained women hand over their guns and ammunition to the Arabs, and the Arabs hand over money reputed to come from the Italians, to the mounted husbands.

Another week and they are back in Abyssinia, ready for another trip.

SUIT AGAINST ERIE SETTLED

Widow of Railroader To Receive $8,750 For Husband's Death.

M. Dale Ward, administrator of the estate of Peter Pole, late of Mansfield, had been authorized today by Probate Judge C. J. Anderson to accept $8,750 from the Erie Railroad company as a damage settlement for the accidental death of Mr. Pole.

Funds obtained from the settlement, which was made out of court, will go to the widow, Mrs. Aspasia Pole, and her three children.

Mr. Pole, an employe of the Erie railroad for many years, was killed near Mansfield last summer when a steel rail fell on his head while he was helping to load rails onto a freight car.

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—A little dog started across a boulevard crowded with downtown-bound traffic. Brakes squealed and fenders rattled as hurrying motorists tried to avoid hitting the animal. SERVICE STATION FOR GIFTS? PONDER OVER PURE OIL'S IDEAS

Have you ever thought of going to a service station for gifts?

It may come under the classification of "Believe It Or Not," but the Pure Oil dealers can be of help when it comes to tackling the Christmas shopping problem.

Instead of a red tie that's never worn, the book that may never be read, or the box of candy that's gone the same day it's received, they will suggest that you give utility gifts this year—presents that folks will enjoy for months or even years to come.

For instance, there's the Pure Heater that would be an ideal gift for dad or mother, or son or daughter, too, if they have a car. It's mounted on a swinging bracket so the heat can be pointed in any direction. There also is an attachment that keeps ice and sleet from the windshield so that the driver has clear vision of the road ahead.

Then there are tires. Tires that are old and worn out can cause a lot of grief and trouble. A new set of low-pressure Yales would be a most appreciated gift.

The Pure Kathanode battery in its airplane case not only is a good looking present, but it is guaranteed for as long as you own the car, which makes it an economical gift, too.

If you don't want to spend that much money on a present, there are the new "Spot-Master" mirrors that give a clear view of the road in the back—eliminating the usual "blind" spot.

A "Sleet Master" too, is another suggestion. This device swings back and forth on the windshield, removing ice and snow.

Pure Oil also has a 'ricky little Christmas package that has been designed for the Pure Oil gasoline coupon book. You just pull the little flap and out comes a gift of Purol-Pep coupons.

New passenger car sales in 47 states during the first 10 months of this year totaled 3,077,134 units, a gain of 8.1 per cent over the corresponding 1936 period, according to a recent R. L. Polk report.

Truck and commercial car sales during the 10 months totaled 552,761 units, 3.7 per cent above the 1936 figure.

FINE FOODS WIN DINERS FRIENDS

S. Walnut and E. Third Eating Places Two of City's Most Popular Restaurants.

Excellent food, served quickly and at reasonable prices has made the Max Diners at 31 East Third street and 15 South Walnut street, two of the most popular restaurants in the city.

Hundreds of steady patrons attest to the fact that the food, prepared by expert chefs, is not only of a high quality, but that the menus have enough variety to satisfy even the most exacting restaurant goer.

In addition to the regular plate lunches and dinners served both at noon and in the evening, the Diners offer a selection of fresh vegetable salads and home made pies served in generous portions.

Both restaurants are open every day in the year, including Sundays and holidays. The South Walnut Diner never closes, its schedule is 24 hours a day, while the East Third street Diner serves from 5 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Christmas will be a big day at the Diners with turkey and all the trimmings heading the menu.

A. D. McNew, founder of the original Diner on South Walnut, manages the East Third street restaurant while his son Tom, who has been associated with him in the business since he started, directs the original Diner.

BOWLING UNIQUE IN WORLD OF SPORTS—IT'S GAME FOR FAMILY

Bowling holds a unique place in the world of sports in that it is almost exclusively a participant's game, M. S. Meder, proprietor of Meder's Recreation alleys contends.

The season for bowling starts simultaneously with football, and although thousands watch a football game, relatively few play, Meder says.

"On the other hand, while there are audiences at bowling matches, the majority of the people at the alleys are those who really get down to the foul line and compete," he added.

From early fall until late in the spring, bowling holds sway. Thousands of people all over the country enjoy the game. All ages are included, from young high school students, both boys and girls, to those hovering around three score and ten.

It isn't an unusual sight at the Meder alleys to see some of the youngsters competing alongside of veterans who started bowling long before the former saw the light of day.

"Fathers and sons, mothers and daughters, husbands and wives, all enjoy hours of recreation that only the game of American ten pins can give," Meder says.

"The equipment and appointments of a modern bowling establishment have played a leading part in encouraging such wide interest in bowling. No better or more wholesome form of recreation has been devised, which at the same time provides a mild form of exercise.

"It is not only a game of skill, but it fosters good fellowship second to no other pastime," Meder points out. "Lasting friendships are constantly created and no such sociality is found anywhere as in bowling leagues.

"Bowling produces action without being strenuous; provides competition without irritation; attracts young or old; combines pleasure with skill, and promotes good health and sociability in one and the same process. These virtues of the game make bowling the greatest of winter indoor sports."

RAILROADS AND COAL

The railroads, in normal years, purchase approximately 23 per cent of the total bituminous coal produced in the United States.

ONE CREDITOR, ONE PAYMENT

That's Mansfield Provident Company's Suggestion In Offering Loan Service.

Almost everyone has debts of some kind, but it's not necessary to have more than one creditor.

That's the thought in the slogan of the Mansfield Provident company, 18 West Third street, which has been providing Mansfield and adjoining territory with a loan service for the last 21 years.

"Let Us Be Your Only Creditor" is a byword at the Mansfield Provident company. By loaning money at a legal rate of interest, it enables its clients to pay off their various debts at once or to make purchases that they would not be otherwise able to do. The loans are then paid off in a series of convenient installments.

The field of loans at the Mansfield Provident is varied. Money can be borrowed on diamonds, automobiles, farm chattels and furniture in making the purchase or for payment after the purchase has been made.

During the Christmas buying season this service becomes particularly handy for those who have a large volume of gifts to purchase.

The Mansfield Provident was founded by Mansfield men 21 years ago and is financed by Mansfield capital.

WORKERS SHARE UP

The American worker's share of the national income has steadily increased from 38 per cent in 1850 to over 66 per cent today.

FAR EASTERN DEVELOPMENTS SCARE TRADERS

Aircraft Issues Move Slightly Higher In Face of General Lull.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Aircrafts again moved slightly higher in today's stock market in the face of a general downward drift in other departments.

Dealings were slow from the start and losses, on the whole, were confined to fractions, near the second hour.

Traders seemed a bit nervous over Far Eastern developments, including sinking of an American gunboat by the Japanese near Nanking. Bonds and commodities were narrow and mixed.

Brokerage quarters studying the early news noted the more cheerful note sounded by the magazine "Steel."

The review found buying in small lots for immediate delivery had increased, indicating inventories were being depleted. It was said signs of larger demand after the turn of the year were growing.

Although much less in volume than usual at this time, railroad purchasing of rails and rolling stock in moderate quantities was seen as a harbinger of better tonnages for mills in the near future.

POPE DEPLORES FAR EAST WAR

Prelate Sees Possibilities Of 'Better Times' In Spain.

VATICAN CITY —(U.P.)— Pope Pius XI, addressing a secret consistory of the Sacred College of Cardinals in the consistorial hall today, deplored the Chinese-Japanese war and the "impious and atrocious things" occurring in Russia and Germany.

The secret consistory was called by the pope for the creation of five new cardinals.

The pope expressed deep regret over the "sad and harrowing events in Spain" but added that "one begins to see hopes for better times."

A brief summary of the pope's message was issued to the press. In it he expressed "sorrows and anxieties" over certain conditions.

CHIEF'S GUEST AS CITY HALL GIRLS HOLD THEIR TEA 'PARTY'

So you think that a big burly policeman can't balance a teacup in the old English manner? You haven't seen Police Chief Meade K. Bates at the tea party held nearly every afternoon in the private office of Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch.

The judge isn't a guest because he leaves about three, and tea isn't served until later, when a little electric tea kettle begins to sing and the cups, with little tea balls and all the niceties that go with tea parties, are spread out on the judge's desk

Pumpkin pie was on the menu one day. Miss Gladys Lash, secretary to Service-Safety Director Philip Wolfe, was the donor.

The party is a bit exclusive affair too—usually only members of the fair sex around city hall are present.

So it was a bit of a surprise to find Chief Bates juggling the tiny teacup in one hand and a wafer in the other recently.

Asked how he happened to be included in the girls' party, Bates replied that he had "no comment."

The tea party idea came into being several days ago when the wintry blasts made it tough going for the two deputies, Miss Isabel Gerstmeyer and Mrs. Freda Gorby, to get out to lunch at noon. They figured they could bring their lunch and have hot tea with it. So they got an electric hot plate and a little tea kettle. Then came cups, saucers, tea balls and sugar and all those other tempting tidbits.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE—Deuce in the Hole. By Harold Gray

BRRR—I'D HATE TO BE IN SILVERSPOON'S SHOES RIGHT NOW—
IN HIS CELL, YOU MEAN—HE'S GOT THE ONE NIGHT TO BLUBBER WHEN SURE THE COPS HAVEN'T GOT HIM IN THE BACK ROOM, "QUESTIONING" HIM—
POOR OLD FRANK—HE WAS A GREAT COPPER—
HE WAS LIKE A DAD TO ME—
SILVERSPOON KILLED HIM JUST AS SURE AS IF HE'D PULLED THE TRIGGER—
I HOPE THEY TURN THAT GUT, SILVERSPOON, LOOSE—
SO DO I—FOR JUST FIVE MINUTES!
YOU BLITHERING IDIOT! NOW YOU ARE SUNK! YOU'LL PAY TO A CRISP—ALL I HOPE IS THAT I'LL BE CLOSE ENOUGH TO HEAR IT!
YOU WILL BE, SHYSTER! HA! HA! YOU'LL EVEN BE NEXT! THE CHIEF SECRET WHO NEVER LOST A MURDER CASE—WELL, TALK FAST, TAL—TALK FAST!
I KNEW IT, SANDY! I JUST KNEW IT! MR. BLAKE CAME TO THE RESCUE AGAIN—HE DID, IF I WERE A GUY HE DIDN'T LIKE I'D SURE WISH ISN'T STREET ANY CONTINUED STORIES—

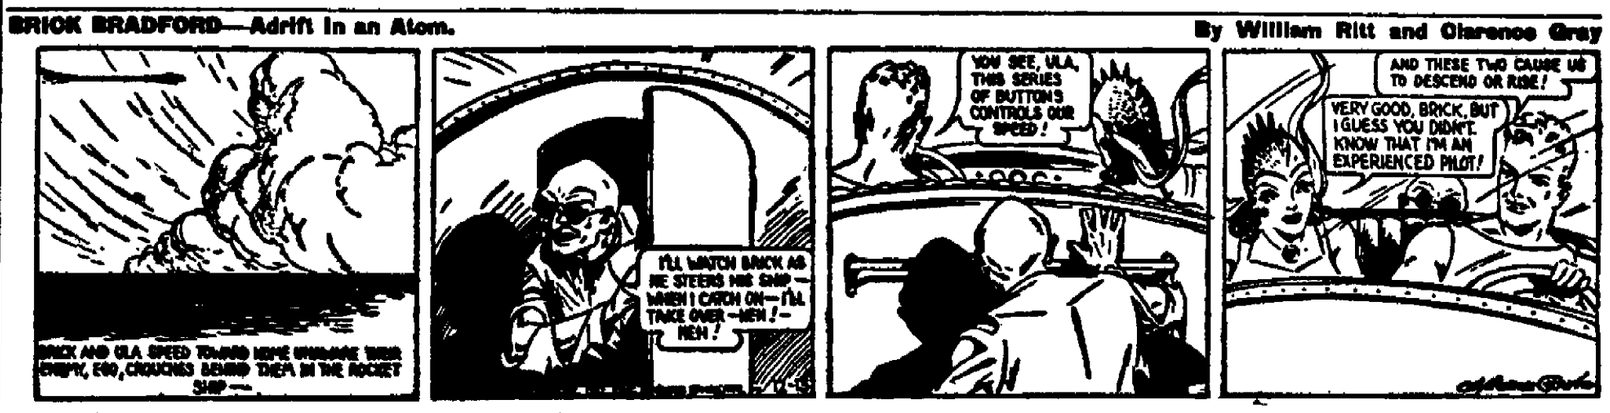
THE NEBBS—Just a Smart Guy. By Sol Hess

HE DON'T WASTE MUCH TIME IN FIXING THE COOK AND GETTING EMMA, HIS BUSINESS PARTNER, BACK INTO THE KITCHEN—IT LOOKS AS IF SHE BOUGHT A JOB.
ATTA GIRL, YOU'RE NOT ONLY A PARTNER BUT A PAL TO STEP IN AND HELP OUT THIS WAY
WELL, I DON'T BELIEVE IN NOBODY SASSING BACK BOSSES—IF A BOSS LETS 'EM DO THAT HE AIN'T NO BOSS AND HE WON'T HAVE NO BUSINESS LONG EITHER
AND BESIDES, I CAN COOK BETTERN HIM AND I WON'T USE HALF THE BUTTER AND THINGS HE DOES
WE GOT A BUSINESS NOW—WE DON'T HAVE TO DEPEND ON HELP—THERE'S NOTHIN' HERE TO DO THAT WE CAN'T DO—YOU AN' ME
THERE AIN'T NO REASON SURROUNDING YOURSELF WITH SMART PEOPLE—HERE I GET A PARTNER FOR 5000 BUCKS AND A COOK FREE—NO WAGES—I MAY NOT BE AS SMART AS SOME FOLKS BUT I'M SMART ON A SMALL SCALE

BRICK BRADFORD—Adrift in an Atom. By William Ritt and Clarence Gray



BRICK AND ULA SPEED TOWARD HOME UNAWARE THAT SNEEPY, EGO, CROUCHES BEHIND THEM IN THE ROCKET SHIP—
I'LL WATCH BACK AS HE STEERS HIS SHIP—WHEN I CATCH ON—I'LL TAKE OVER—HEH!—HEH!
YOU SEE, ULA, THIS SERIES OF BUTTONS CONTROLS OUR SPEED!
AND THESE TWO CAUSE US TO DESCEND OR RISE!
VERY GOOD, BRICK, BUT I GUESS YOU DIDN'T KNOW THAT I'M AN EXPERIENCED PILOT!

3 CARS HIT BY TRAINS, 2 DIE

2 Others Seriously Hurt as Passenger Train Strikes Auto at Crestline.

At Loudonville, Mr. and Mrs. John Ross leaped from their stalled automobile in time to see the car demolished by "The General," Pennsylvania train which dragged the vehicle and a portion of the Loudonville depot platform a mile down the tracks.

Damages to the locomotive delayed the train an hour while another engine was brought from Orrville, reports said. The train, which struck the car at the Water street crossing about 10 p. m. Saturday, ripped a part of the platform away as it passed the depot with the automobile on the front of the locomotive.

Details of the tragedy at Crestline Saturday afternoon which brought death to Mr. and Mrs Remmy, are not known. The car, believed driven by Mrs. Fried, was struck at the unprotected Washington street crossing.

The party was enroute to the office of a Crestline physician where Mrs. Remmy was to have received medical treatment. The machine was owned by Elmer Fried, husband of the injured woman.

Funeral services for Mr. and Mrs. Remmy will be held at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday at the Sutter funeral home in Shelby with Rev. Floyd Honchell, pastor of the Nazarene church, officiating. He will be assisted by Rev. W. W Ralph of the First Methodist church. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery, Shelby.

Mr. Remmy, who was employed at the Ohio Seamless Tube company in Shelby, was was a native of Lucas but lived most of his life near Shelby. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. Fried; a brother, Charles, of Lima; his mother, Mrs. Ellen Remmy, of Shelby, and a son by a former marriage, Robert Fried, of Crestline.

Mrs. Remmy is survived by a sister, Mrs. Ora Jewel, Shelby, and three brothers, Clyde Smith, of Shiloh, and Lawrence and Harley Smith, of Mansfield.

Driver Jailed at Crestline.

Dwight Cauffman, Crestline, was held today in the Crestline jail on a charge of driving while intoxicated after his car collided with another driven by Miss Helen Such, 56 Richland avenue, Mansfield, last night in Crestline.

Miss Mary Hazlett, of 159 Blymyer avenue, occupant of the car was treated at Crestline Emergency hospital for head lacerations suffered in the accident. Miss Ruth Gottas, of 67 Harter avenue, and Miss Ruth Simon, of 147 Blymyer avenue, also riding with Miss Such, were uninjured.

Jacob Fuller, 21, Loudonville, is in the Mansfield General hospital with a broken nose and chest and shoulder injuries suffered in an accident at 3 a. m Sunday on route 39 near Lucas. Fuller was riding with Wayne R. Berdsley, 23, of Loudonville when their car skidded and overturned against an embankment.

Neither Berdsley nor Miss Helen Strouse, 21, of Loudonville, a third passenger in the car, was hurt, according to L. A. Alexander, state highway patrolman.

Miss Helen Gandert, 219½ Park avenue east, was treated at General hospital for scalp wounds received at 7 p. m. Saturday when she was struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Cora E. Jenkins, 426 West Third street, police reported. The accident occurred as Miss Gandert walked across Park avenue east.

In the state's week-end toll three men died at Newcomerstown, O., when the car in which they were riding was demolished by a passenger train.

Other victims of accidents in the state included Thomas, 60, who was found frozen at Lorain after he had either been injured in a fall or struck by a hit-skip driver, and Mrs. Eldora Jane Downing, 74, who burned to death at Findlay when her clothing ignited while she was building a fire in a stove.

In southern Ohio, two persons were killed near Manchester as a bus and automobile collided head-on. The dead were occupants of the car. Five bus passengers were injured.

Out of a potential electrical power of 16,000,000 kilowatts on the Mississippi river and its tributaries, only 2,000,000 have been utilized.

OFFICIAL OF O-B DIES IN CHICAGO

Death of R. J. Deneen, Vice President of Mansfield Firm, Called Suicide.

The death of Robert James Deneen, 57, vice president of Ohio Brass company, who fell to his death yesterday from the sixth floor of Augustan hospital in Chicago, was found to be suicide by a coroner's jury, Associated Press dispatches said today.

Company officials here said Mr. Deneen had been ill for the past two years and last Thursday entered the hospital for treatment of a nervous disorder and stomach ailment.

He was a member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, the Union League, Chicago Art Institute and the Lake Shore Athletic club.

Mr Deneen was born in Milwaukee, Wis., and was a Marquette university graduate. He joined the Ohio Brass company as a salesman in 1908 and was made vice president of the company in 1928, the position he held at the time of his death.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon in Chicago.

GOES ON TRIAL ON DOPE CHARGE

Physician's Case to Be Heard by Common Pleas Jury.

At least nine witnesses had been subpoenaed today to appear before the petit jury as Dr. James Sawyer, Mansfield physician, went on trial shortly before noon on charges of illegal sale of narcotics.

The 63-year-old doctor was arrested two months ago at his office at 98 South Main street after he allegedly sold morphine to an addict. He was cited on charges of city detectives who said he sold morphine to a "decoy" who was sent to the office to make a purchase.

The defendant has been free under $3,000 bond since a short time after he pleaded innocent to the charges early in November.

Mystery Blast Rocks East Side, Puzzles Officials

A blast that shook the east side of Mansfield at noon today and sent firemen of company No. 1, to the vicinity of East Third street remained somewhat of a mystery to police and fire officials.

Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger said the apparatus had been called by East Third street residents who thought they saw smoke coming from the home of Homer J. Baker, 218 East Third street, following the blast.

He said the smoke was nothing more than steam escaping from a sewer vent and could give no explanation for the report heard by east side residents. Police and the sheriff's office also were at a loss to explain the rumble that shook the buildings. Several residents in the neighborhood thought there had been an earthquake.

LEADS FORUM

Rev. Roller Addresses Weekly Meeting of Youth Group.

"Life Has Loveliness to Sell," was the topic discussed by members of the Community Christian Youth Forum at the weekly meeting held Sunday evening in the First Congregational church.

The discussion was led by Rev. David N. Roller, pastor of the First Presbyterian church.

"Loveliness is not in what you see entirely, but in what you are looking for," Rev. Roller said.

The discussion was preceded by a fellowship period under the supervision of Miss Nellie Reader, instructor of Physical education at Madison high school. Charles Atwell, president of the forum, presided during the business session. The devotional period was led by Eleanor Fraser, Mac Sanford and William Ahrandt.

The next meeting of the group will be held at 6 p. m. Sunday at the First Christian church. Following a fellowship program and devotional service, the group will march down Park avenue west to Central park where they will sing Christmas carols.

ern conflict, and the maintenance of American military and naval forces in China.

White House officials said today this government's policy would be decided on a national patriotic basis with a complete absence of political consideration.

The president, they added, hoped the American people and the press would give him their understanding support.

Stephen T. Early, a presidential secretary, who discussed the matter with newsmen did not give a fuller explanation of what the president had in mind. Early added that by presidential direction the policy for the immediate future would be to give out all the facts as they come in from the Far East.

He said the president was informed of the Panay sinking shortly after midnight and that he and Secretary Hull had several conversations by telephone before he retired early this morning.

The attack was considered the more serious because the Panay reportedly was marked plainly with American flags painted on its decks. Japanese naval and military forces had been informed of the Panay's presence in the Yangtse river between Shanghai and Wuhu.

COUNTY'S SHARE OF U. S. FARM FUNDS DELAYED

First Payments Under Soil Conservation Program Not Expected Before Feb. 1.

Despite an increased staff at the county agent's office and speedier handling of applications for federal soil conservation payments, Richland county farmers probably will receive no federal checks under the 1937 program before Feb. 1, County Agent George B. Ganyard, said today.

"The mass of information about county farms that must be compiled and the involved handling of the applications of participating farmers will delay approval of the blanks until late winter," Ganyard said.

At least 50 per cent of the farm applications must be submitted and approved by federal farm officials before any payments will be made. Approximately 1,600 farmers in the county will receive federal funds under the 1937 program for retiring lands from cash production and for improving their farm fertility, Ganyard said.

Receive $85,000.

This year more than $85,000 in federal funds were received by county farmers in amounts ranging from 58 cents to $900.

While Ganyard and G. L. Taylor, county conservation committee chairman, are still awaiting final details of the new soils program, they indicated that few changes in the set-up are likely.

"Possibly more emphasis will be placed on soil building and less on reducing crop acreage," Ganyard said. "Payments will be based on the extent to which the participating farmer complies with the goal set up for the county."

The goal is established only after federal crop experts have complete information as to the acreage in soil depleting crops and soil building crops, the topography of the farm and the degree of erosion.

Farmers participating in the program will be urged to use more lime and fertilizer on their lands, more acres in such crops as hay and soy beans, and reduce the acreage of cash crops, including corn, wheat and potatoes.

FLYING TACKLE SAVES YOUTH

Man, 75, Puts Out Flames Enveloping Fellow Employe.

DENVER—(U.P.)—The speed of 75-year-old S. A. Sicard was credited with saving the life of Harold Salton who was enveloped in flames when a gasoline barrel he was loading on a truck exploded.

Screaming with pain, he started running down the alley. Sicard pursued him, threw him to the ground with a flying tackle and beat out the flames with his bare hands. Both men are Salvation Army employes.

REMEMBER THAT NIGHT

By MARGARET GORMAN NICHOLS

CHAPTER V

When she reached the apartment house one day at twilight, she saw Roxanne getting out of a cab, her arms laden with boxes, her blond hair freshly waved.

"Had a telegram from Bill," she said as Karen relieved her of two of the boxes. "He's coming tonight. No luck today, Karen?"

"No luck. I could go back to selling dresses. I was rather good at that."

Roxanne saw how discouraged she was. On the elevator she said, "Cheer up. You're going out to dinner with Bill and me and then you're going up on the roof to dance with Bill. He's a swell dancer. Who says I'm jealous? And you can hear me sing. That ought to be a treat."

At the door of Karen's room she took the boxes. "Put on an evening dress and make yourself beautiful. That shouldn't be hard for you."

"But I don't feel right about going out with you and Bill," Karen protested.

* * *

Karen had two evening dresses, bought at a twenty per cent discount at the little shop in Harriston. One was a dark red taffeta, the other a gray chiffon made entirely of tiny pleats with a cluster of violets at the belt.

Selecting the gray dress and silver sandals, she took a quick bath, brushed her dark hair until it shone, then dressed. With a three-quarter length white satin coat over the dress, she went to Roxanne's apartment and knocked.

"Bill just called and said he'd be here in a few minutes," Roxanne said, her white satin dress gleaming. "I can't wait to see him! One of these days you're going to meet a man you won't be able to live without."

Roxanne had been honest. Her red mouth curving, Karen said, "I have but I'll have to learn to live without him."

"Philip Ashley?" Roxanne shook her head. "You're just making it tough for yourself. I enquired around and found out he's in love with a girl in England. Crazy about her. They're going to get married when she comes back."

They are going to get married when she came back...

The bell rang and Roxanne hurried to the mouthpiece.

"Bill? Darling, come up! Hurry?"

In a few minutes Bill McGrath came in and Karen liked him at once. He was tall and strong with steadfast dark eyes and smooth dark hair. He was handsome, she thought, but not as handsome as Philip Ashley.

Roxanne went to him and put her arms around him. Karen saw how much they loved each other.

Then Roxanne said, looking at Karen, "Forgive us for putting on a love scene but I hope we always will and not care who is looking."

Smiling, she looked up at Bill. "Why did you tell me to get dressed up? What are we celebrating?"

"My return." Then he laughed. "You haven't introduced me to Karen!"

They dined at a small exclusive place and Karen knew that Roxanne was wondering why Bill was being lavish tonight. But she did not ask him again, thinking that because he had been away he wished to be festive on his return. They talked and laughed a great deal and Karen almost forgot her worries at not having found work on the stage.

While Bill and Roxanne were talking, she looked around at the beautifully coiffed heads of the women and the well groomed heads of the men. How silly to hope that Philip world be here! How silly to hope anything of a man who was waiting for a girl in England to come back!

After dinner they took a taxi to the hotel. Roxanne left them and Karen and Bill sat at a table by the window. The music was playing and people were dancing.

Bill's dark eyes looked across the table at Karen.

"Funny that you and Roxanne should bump into each other," he said. His eyes were intense and serious. "She's never had a really good friend before."

Karen smiled. "But I won't have her after Christmas. I think she's wonderful, too. Sometimes hard knocks make you bitter and sometimes they make you mellow. They've made Roxanne mellow. I don't know what I'd have done without her, and I don't think I'm going to get anybody to take her place."

He lowered his eyes as if suddenly he could not face her, as if some guilt in his mind made him look away from her. His hand, a strong hand, nervously tapped the ashes from the cigarette.

"She's the swellest girl I've ever known." He looked up and smiled. "How about dancing? It won't be much fun for you if I talk about Roxanne all night."

In the next hour Karen knew that something was worrying Bill. Had he lost his job? Had his parents objected to his marriage? She felt frightened for Roxanne.

The lights went out and in the spotlight Roxanne appeared and sang. She sang about the man she loved and she sang with feeling. She was singing to Bill, Karen knew, whose dark eyes had pain and guilt in them. Looking first at the small blond girl in the spotlight and then at Bill, Karen thought, "Something has happened. There is something he is trying to get up courage to tell her."

When the lights went on, Karen saw Philip, saw him follow Brenda Bond and a distinguished looking older man to a table.

* * *

Brenda said, "Why, Philip, isn't the girl over there Karen Mallare? Of course it is! Look at her, Craig. She's a beautiful thing."

Philip's brown eyes were amused. "It looks as if that girl has a way of crossing my path. Wonder who the young man is. You're quite right, Brenda. She is beautiful."

She looks lovely in gray. I think you should speak to her." She turned to Craig Stanhope. "She wants to be an actress. Do you wonder I feel sorry for her? Young, inexperienced and alone, and she wants to go on the stage."

"Poor child," Craig said.

But Philip was not listening for looking at Karen's profile and the way her dark hair curled on her neck. There was courage in her profile. She'd stick it out to the last ditch, he thought. You couldn't defeat a girl like that. Then suddenly he remembered how beautiful she had been with tears shining in her eyes.

* * *

Karen thought, "He sees me and they are talking about me! They are probably laughing at me again!"

"Shall we dance again?" Bill asked.

Knowing that he did not care to dance and that his efforts to entertain her were strained, she said, "No, not now."

He looked relieved.

She did not dare look at Philip. Her heart was beating fast—beating fast for a man who loved a girl in England. Foolish heart, be still...

But when some one paused at the table, she knew it was he before she looked up.

"Karen," Philip said. "We meet again. I'm unaccompanied as usual and I'd like to dance with you."

She introduced him to Bill and the men shook hands. Then getting up, she laid her hand on Philip's shoulder. Oh, let me dance well! she thought. And by the time they had circled the floor once, she couldn't deny it any longer. Did he know she was trembling? "Philip is the man I love more than I love my own life! Philip is the man I think I can't live without!"

Looking at Karen's graceful dress, Brenda said, "That beautiful girl is in love with Philip, Craig. Madly. She'd like this dance with him to last forever."

* * *

Dancing with Philip....Karen had danced with a hundred boys in Harriston but it had never been like this.

"Is New York being kind to you?" Philip asked, looking down on her shining dark head.

New York had closed doors rudely in her face. There was no place for her. But she could not let him know how discouraged she was.

"Yes, very kind. I've made two friends, Roxanne Dell and Bill McGrath. Roxanne sings here. They're engaged."

"Oh, I see." Then the young man at the table was not her interest. "Come and speak to Brenda and meet Dr. Stanhope. Brenda hasn't forgotten you."

The dance over, they paused briefly at the table to speak to Brenda and Craig. Then Philip took her back to Bill.

Later Roxanne appeared again. Philip, Brenda and Craig left. It was one-thirty when Karen and Bill met Roxanne in the lobby downstairs.

In her apartment Roxanne turned to Bill and put her arms around him.

He said, "I've bad news for you. I've got to go to Florida on Monday by boat." And added in an undertone, "Business."

"Again! But you just got back!" Her fingers tried to erase deep furrows between his dark eyes. "You're worried about something. You can't fool me. I know. What good am I if I can't share things with you—good things and bad? I don't care if you don't get that promotion, Bill. . . ."

"It's not that. But I've got to go to Florida."

"Tell me everything is okay, Bill. And everything is okay if you still love me and want me."

"I do."

Softly against his shoulder she laughed. "Then everything is okay. I'm happy Bill. I only want—us. That's not so much to want—and yet it's everything. And after Christmas it won't be you and me but —us."

Tenderly he put a stray blond curl in place. "It'll be thinking of you every minute, Roxanne. I'll . . ."

She kissed him. "Let's go into the kitchen and make coffee. Singing makes me hungry. It makes me feel like a heel when you won't tell me what's bothering you. Girls don't know anything about business—is that it? Especially me. I just sing songs to you. Isn't Karen beautiful?"

Later, outside her apartment door, he kissed her again.

* * *

"I'm coming down to see you off Monday," Roxanne said. "Don't tell me I can't! And I'll be waiting for you, Bill. Always waiting until I won't have to wait any more. Call me tomorrow." As he walked to the elevator, he turned. She smiled and threw him a kiss and closed the door.

Before the elevator came, Bill stared at the closed door and the furrow between his brows became deeper.

PLEADS GUILTY

Killer of Sweetheart, Mother to Be Sentenced Soon.

BUTLER, Pa. —(AP)— Floyd D. Tait, 20, has pleaded guilty to murder charges in the fatal Hallowe'en party slaying of his mother and his sweetheart.

His plea was entered before Judge John H. Wilson, who set Dec. 17 to hear testimony and sentence the youth.

The Butler county grand jury indicted him four days ago on murder charges in the fatal stabbings of his mother, Mrs. Florence Tait, 38, and his sweetheart, Miss Dorothy Jean Bash, 20.

Tait also admitted slashing Mrs. Hilda Seymour, 40, before he wounded himself with the butcher knife he had wielded in his murderous attacks.

Methods For Making Candy Given Today

By PAULINE SCHOFIELD
Home Economist Ohio Fuel Gas Company.

Everybody seems to be counting the number of days until Christmas, but not all with the same thought in mind.

Youngsters are marking the calendar in anticipation of gifts they will receive, husbands are checking off the days until they can see how those electric trains for Junior work, and housewives are wondering if there is still time to make some Christmas candies.

These candies will not only please the family group but will also make a nice remembrance to friends when wrapped in attractive packages.

Honey Caramels.

1 Cup honey
1 Cup corn syrup
1 Cup sugar
¼ lb. butter (½ cup)
1 Can condensed milk (sweetened)
1 Cup chopped walnut meats

Boil one can sweetened milk in unopened can for 2 hours. Be careful to keep can covered with water. Open and blend contents with the butter, honey, sugar and corn syrup.

Boil slowly in heavy saucepan, stirring constantly until mixture forms firm ball in cold water (250 degrees). Remove from fire, add nuts, pour in buttered pan. Chill and cut. Wrap each caramel in heavy wax paper.

Grand Operas.

2 Cups sugar
2-3 Cup heavy cream
1 Cup milk
4 Tablespoons light corn syrup
¼ Teaspoon salt
½ Teaspoon vanilla
1 Cup broken pecan meats
4 Squares Chocolate

Combine sugar, cream, milk, corn syrup and salt, and heat until sugar is dissolved and mixture boils, stirring constantly. Continue cooking, stirring occasionally, until a small amount of syrup forms a soft ball in cold water (234 degrees F.). Cool to lukewarm (110 degrees F.) and add vanilla. Beat until mixture begins to thicken; then add nuts and continue beating only until mixture loses its gloss. Turn at once into greased pan, 8x8 inches. Cool. Heat chocolate over boiling water until partly melted; then remove from boiling water and stir it rapidly until entirely melted. Pour over candy. Cool until firm. Cut in squares. Makes 64 pieces.

Almond Butter Crunch.

1 Cup butter
1 Cup sugar
¼ Cup finely chopped blanched almonds, lightly toasted
4 Squares Chocolate

Add butter to sugar in saucepan. Place over low flame and stir constantly until sugar is dissolved. Cook until a small amount of mixture becomes very brittle in cold water (310 degres F.), stirring occasionally to prevent scorching. Add ¼ cup nuts. Pour into lightly buttered pan, 8x8x2 inches. Cool. Heat chocolate over boiling water until partly melted, then remove from boiling water and stir it rapidly until entirely melted. Spread ½ of chocolate over top and sprinkle with ½ of remaining nuts. Cool until chocolate is firm. Break in small irregular pieces. Makes about 1¼ pounds crunch.

Creamy Chocolate Fudge.

2 Squares unsweetened chocolate
½ Cup water
½ Cup evaporated milk
1 Cup granulated sugar
½ Cup brown sugar, firmly packed
Dash of salt
2 Tablespoons butter
1 Teaspoon vanilla
1 Cup broken nut meats

Add chocolate to water and milk and place over low flame. Cook until mixture is smooth and blended, stirring constantly. Add sugars and salt, and stir until sugars are dissolved and mixture boils. Continue boiling, without stirring, until a small amount of mixture forms a very soft ball in cold water (232 degrees F.). Remove from fire; add butter and vanilla, cool to lukewarm (110 degrees F.); then beat until mixture begins to thicken and loses its gloss. Add nuts. Turn at once into greased pan, 8x4 inches. When firm, cut in squares. Makes 18 large pieces. Double recipe for large pan, 8x8 inches.

Divinity Candy.

1½ Cups sugar
2 Tablespoons lemon juice
½ Cup water
Few grains salt

Turkey N' Trimmin's

With the ingredients shown above, at hand everything should be about set for the holiday feast. Cranberries for a sauce or jelly, a prize bird for stuffing, oranges and grapefruit for a fruit cup, and vegetables to supplement the flavor of the fowl.

Directions For Preparing Special Holiday Appetizers

You've heard of turkey in the straw—but here's one in the raw, surrounded by all the "fixin's" that make Christmas dinner one long to be remembered. A plump bird; golden grapefruit and fresh oranges for fruit cup; rosy cranberries for sauce; potatoes and turnips in onion-flavored gravy; celery to crunch between times.

Cranberry And Grapefruit Cocktail.

2 Cups cranberries
2 Cups water
1-3 Cup granulated sugar
3 Grapefruit
½ Cup chopped candied orange peel or other fruit
1 Egg white, stiffly beaten
16 Marshmallows

Put water in a heavy saucepan. Add the lemon juice. Pour sifted, measured granulated sugar in center of pan, so that it does not touch sides of the pan. Cook over low fire until the sugar is dissolved, put a tight cover on the pan and cook about 2 minutes; uncover, insert a clean candy thermometer (washed entirely free of sugar from previous usage). Cook to 240 degrees F., when the syrup will spin a short thread.

Pour the hot syrup in as thin a stream as possible into the stiffly beaten egg white, beating constantly. Continue beating until the mixture will stand up in peaks and feel firm when touched with the finger. Add chopped fruit and the marshmallows cut in small pieces. If possible, one person should beat while another pours in the syrup and, later, adds the fruit and marshmallows. Pour into a buttered dish, or drop, by spoonfuls on waxed paper, and allow it to become firm.

Marshmallow Pecan Brittle.

Put 2 cups of sugar in a heavy iron skillet. Stir as it melts, and turns light golden brown. Remove from the fire, add ½ cup nut meats, and 16 marshmallows, cut in quarters. Stir enough to mix well, and spread on a buttered platter. When hard, break into pieces.

Orange Ice.

2 Cups sugar
¼ Teaspoon salt
2 Cups orange juice
¼ Cup lemon juice
4 Cups water
Grated rind of 2 oranges

Boil sugar and water together 5 minutes. Add salt and orange rind and cool; and fruit juices. Strain. Pack in ice and salt or in trays of mechanical refrigerator and freeze. 2 quarts ice.

Fruit Cup.

6 Oranges
2 Small thin-skinned grapefruit
1 Cup white cherries (stoned)
6 Tablespoons lemon juice
2 Cups powdered sugar
Red and green Maraschino cherries

Peel and segment the oranges and grapefruit and combine segments with cherries and sugar; sprinkle with lemon juice and chill well. Garnish with halved red and green Maraschino cherries and serve in cocktail glasses.

Suggestions For Sunday Dinners

By ANN PAGE

Most housewives plan to serve inexpensive and easy-to-prepare meals before the Christmas feast.

Eggs make a welcome main dish anytime. They may be used freely for cooking and baking, because storage eggs are plentiful and very reasonable for this time of the year. The supply of fresh eggs is gradually increasing, and prices, naturally, are decreasing.

Forequarter cuts of veal, legs and chuck of lamb, smoked pork are good choices in the line of meats. Some families who spent Thanksgiving Day away from home, may want a turkey of their own for the week-end. Turkeys are still available at reasonable prices.

There is a wide choice of cheap fruits and vegetables. Grapefruit, small oranges for juice, apples, Brussels sprouts, cauliflower, carrots, rutabagas are all cheap.

Low Cost Dinner.
Ham Loaf with Egg Sauce
Glased Carrots Baked Potatoes
Bread and Butter
Half Grapefruit
Tea or Coffee Milk

Medium Cost Dinner.
Roast Shoulder of Veal
Sweet Potatoes Cauliflower
Bread and Butter
Heart of Lettuce Salad
Baked Apples stuffed with Pecans
Tea or Coffee Milk

Very Special Dinner.
Oysters
A Roast Leg of Lamb
Brussels Sprouts with Chestnuts
Pan Browned Potatoes
Stuffed Celery Salad
Rolls and Butter
Sponge Cake with Orange Custard
Tea or Coffee Milk

Use fruit juice in place of the cream or milk called for in Christmas cooky recipes. It will give added variety.

Kitchen Hints

Try steaming Brussels sprouts, broccoli, celery, asparagus, onions, carrots, cauliflower or turnips. They will keep their shapes better and won't lose so much flavor. They also will cook in less time than they would if they were boiled. Use a regular steamer or put the vegetable in a large strainer or colander and suspend it in a kettle of boiling water an inch above the water lines.

Suggested garnishes for holiday fowl: prunes stuffed with diced, spiced pears; orange slices candied and covered with cranberry jelly; candied grapefruit slices spread with apple jelly; cranberry jelly rounds covered with diced mint jelly; spiced peaches stuffed with pecans and browned; cranberry sauce in lemon halves; cooked whole beets, hollowed out and stuffed with chopped pickles and olives.

Lime, lemon, pineapple or mint ice makes a refreshing topping for fruit juice or diced fruit cocktails. The ice also may be used to top a holiday punch bowl filled with chilled fruit beverages.

Planning For Left-Overs Wise Course

It is impossible always to guage accurately the appetites of the family; instead, clever housewives plan for left-overs. This enables them to take advantage of market conditions and week-end sales, and often effects a substantial saving.

"In buying meats never hesitate to choose a roast or pot-roast larger than needed for one meal," says Inez S. Willson, home economist, "for there are dozens of ways to utilize the last bits. It is a good idea to have more than enough of all meats which are cooked for a considerable length of time, even meat loaves or stews, because they make easy and economical second meals. Here are several suggestions for using left-over meats.

Roast or Pot-Roast.

Dice the left-over roast, combine it with a cream sauce, and serve in patty shells or on baking powder biscuits. Left-over vegetables such as peas and carrots, if there is not enough to serve separately, are often added to the creamed meat.

Slice the roast into thin slices and reheat it in a barbecue sauce. Since the meat is already cooked, it needs only reheating. Longer cooking is undesirable.

Dice the last bits of the roast, combine with an equal amount of chopped cooked potatoes and grated onion. Moisten with left-over gravy, and brown in hot bacon drippings.

Grind the last of the roast for a loaf. Combine with a few bread crumbs, moisten with cream of mushroom soup, and bake until heated through, about thirty minutes.

Slice meat and reheat in a casserole on top of escalloped potatoes or noodles.

Meat Loaf.

Slice cold meat loaf and place in greased baking dish. Pour cream of tomato soup over all and reheat in a moderately slow oven.

Left-Over Stew.

Place meat and vegetables together with gravy into a casserone. If vegetables are not diced, cut them into half-inch cubes. Cover with baking powder biscuit rounds and place in a hot oven until biscuits are baked and meat and vegetables are reheated.

Remove the centers from hard rolls. Fill with stew meat and vegetables together with a little gravy. Heat in oven.

Smart Wrappings

Black and white gift wrappings are very effective. Wrap the gift in a shiny black paper and tie it with white gummed tape, silk cord or ribbon. Insert a bit of greenery, such as cedar, mistletoe or snowberries. Cut pictures and appropriate verses from last year's Christmas cards and paste or tie them on top of the package.

Cutting Cake

Use a very sharp knife to cut fruit cake into thin slices. Dip the knife into warm water frequently. Doing so will help prevent crumbling.

The controversy still rages as to whether "matrimony" is a word or a sentence.

In a democracy free speech is guaranteed—but only a dictator can make listening compulsory.

Education Better Than Compulsion.

A FEDERAL court has ruled that children cannot be expelled from public schools for refusing to salute the United States flag if it is forbidden by their religious principles. It is the first legal victory of the religious sect, Jehovah's Witnesses, in its long fight for religious freedom.

It may be recalled that two years ago children of that sect were being expelled from public schools in Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and a few other states for refusing to salute the flag. Their parents had forbidden it because they thought the salute implied worshipping the flag itself.

The judge, dealing with the case of a brother and sister from Minersville, Pa., said in his decision, "Liberty of conscience means liberty for each individual to decide for himself what to him is religious."

Children learn easily to love their country's flag, particularly when they are taught its origin and purpose. It is possible that in all these compulsory salute cases a well-conducted educational program might have overcome the parents' objection to the salute. And it is better to have respect for the flag and readiness to salute it developed from within than imposed by outside authority.

The Annual Football Banquet.

DESERVED recognition will be accorded members of the Mansfield high school football team and their retinue of coaches, managers and trainers at the banquet sponsored by The News-Journal at the Mansfield-Leland hotel next Wednesday evening.

This year marks the third annual grid party for the Tygers, and it will again be a major event of the holiday season, judging from the interest attached to the banquet.

While there will be no championships to celebrate, the event will climax the close of one of the most successful seasons ever achieved by a Mansfield high school football team. One defeat and two ties mar what was otherwise a perfect campaign for Mansfield's gallant grid gladiators.

The victory dinner will serve a double purpose this year. In addition to honoring the Tygers, the banquet will be something in the nature of a homecoming for Wilbur F. (Pete) Henry, a Mansfield boy and former All-American at Washington and Jefferson college, who will be the principal speaker at the affair. Henry is now the athletic director at W. & J.

The party is planned annually as a tribute to the team, and the program will center around football and the Tygers' achievements. It will again be an open affair to which the public is invited to help the team celebrate the close of the season.

Mansfield can show appreciation of the fine record established by the Tygers by attending their "Victory Dinner." Their achievements on the gridiron deserve civic recognition.

Example of Wise Giving.

THE philanthropic division of an $8,000,000 estate is worth studying. The rich man, who had given generously during his lifetime, provided for other benefits after his death.

The biggest bequest went to a fine modern hospital to increase its facilities and enlarge its usefulness. Other big gifts went to a school of art, an art museum, a symphony orchestra, a social settlement house, a scientific school and a great university.

Each of these institutions, in its own field, is already well established and performing an important service to society, beyond the immediate group and community connected with it. Here are health, education, the arts, science, and social welfare work all recognized and helped. All of them are necessary in any well-rounded and progressive community life.

Longer Life, Shorter Work.

SPEAKING of the fact that human life is lengthening nowadays, in spite of economic difficulties, a business writer says:

"The deep irony of it is that, while most of us are living longer, the earning years appear to be shortening." This comes from a new "industrial discipline," with its pressure on employers "to take on only men who can turn out the money."

What is the use of living longer, if the earning years are shorter and the long years of enforced leisure following middle age are to be years of poverty for many? Such a system doesn't make sense.

This is one of the absurd situations our confused industrial economy has blundered into. It is unjust to millions of people. It prevents the "abundance" that everybody talks about. It throws a growing burden of charity upon public treasuries already overburdened.

Coercion for Jurors.

A NEW doctrine announced for Brazilian courts looks rather strange and dangerous to North Americans with the Anglo-Saxon traditions. Hereafter a jury will be subject to prosecution for perjury if a trial court decides that it has rendered a verdict contrary to the evidence.

This might be a blow at the independence of juries. Under our system, the jury itself has been judge of the facts, and the presiding judge has concerned himself only with the law applicable in the case.

Juries, no doubt, make occasional mistakes. But it may result in less justice, rather than more, if they are deterred by fear of prosecution from using their honest judgment. This might be an opening for political control of the courts.

The milk of human kindness shouldn't be skimmed.

TO THE RESCUE

States Cry For 'Rights,' Then Yell For Help

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — American statesmanship does some of its best talking unofficially.

For example, Senator William H. King of Utah recently called attention to the fact that the constant clamoring of the respective states for federal financial aid tends strongly toward an over-concentration of governmental authority in Washington—indeed, that "there will be a dictatorship if the states fail to maintain their sovereign rights."

It was not on Capitol Hill, however, that the senator uttered this warning, but in an informal speech before a business men's convention in a local hotel.

* * *

STATES INCONSISTENT

The states are extremely inconsistent in this matter.

Each is very jealous of its individual independence—some especially so, but none is unresentful of any hint of dictation, in its home affairs, by District of Columbia officialdom.

Yet all of them constantly invite it by demands for cash from Uncle Sam's treasury.

And if it isn't forthcoming, the most vociferous of states' rights solons are loudest in expressions of their indignation.

* * *

WHEN UNCLE SAM CUTS—!

Occasionally Uncle Sam feels an urge to curtail his donations to state funds for their various own reliefs, activities and improvements.

Whenever he has one of these spasms of economy, the states "yell their heads off."

Illustratively, not long ago President Roosevelt suggested to congress the desirability of cutting down on appropriations for state road building. The states' protest against such a policy has been terrific.

Of course the automotive industry has joined in it.

* * *

A NECESSITY

I can remember when our rural highways were practically impossible to travel in bad weather. Their condition handicapped marketing; it was a national liability. With the auto's advent there simply HAD to be an improvement. And it had to be general. An autoist was not much benefited, if, after a few miles' journeying along a good pike through an up-to-date community, he bogged down on a mud road in some less public-spirited area just adjoining.

Unquestionably some co-ordination of highways became cryingly necessary.

* * *

HOW IT WORKED

The federal government justifiably took the situation in hand.

Accordingly Uncle Sam undertook to spend $1 in United States money to supplement each state's $1 in the construction of first-class roads within said state's boundaries.

That started the states' road building programs a-going.

Each state wanted to get all it could of that federal money. It "hocked" itself to the limit to match Uncle Sam's money.

It was all right up to a certain point, but there were states which overdid themselves.

They bonded themselves for more than they could afford in order to avail themselves of federal benefits that they did not need. They have better roads than they require, involving higher taxation rates than they well can pay—just because, by greed, they grabbed at near-bankruptcy.

* * *

AN ECONOMIC PROBLEM

Incidentally they raised Cain with the national transportation industry.

The railways are "in the soup" largely because of the growth of bus and truck competition with rail passenger and freight carrying.

Probably it served the rail lines right to have their selfish monopoly cracked in the back by this new rivalry. Still, it HAS created a new economic problem. It is a national problem, too. Yet the states do not want to consider it so. "States' rights" is their motto.

* * *

AN OLD QUOTATION

The states righters, in short, want all the privileges of local government, with all the advantages (if any) of nationalization.

As Senator King remarks, they cannot have and eat their cake simultaneously.

Travel Bills, $430,000.

Just made available by congress, the sum of $225,000 will be divided among the 96 senators and 435 representatives in congress. It's the 20 cents a mile each way given for travel expenses to and from their homes to attend the special session of congress. Members from the Rocky Mountain and Pacific coast states get from $800 to $1,000 each. The check paid to the delegate from Hawaii calls for $2,000.

In the regular course, another $225,000 will be split for attendance at the regular session starting in January. How many will not go home for the short interval between the regular and special sessions? The mileage allowances have been under fire as excessive for years. If given and taken for travels not made, they will be inexcusable grabs. Detroit News.

MORE EVIDENCE that the "recession" is world-wide: Unemployment is increasing in England in spite of the enormous expenditures for re-armament.

Another drive is getting under way—undercover. This one, to permit banks to do an underwriting business again. It probably will not go far. The administration will dig up the testimony of the Pecora investigation.

Insurance company managements are under more serious fire than had been indicated. The New York state legislature is to be asked to tighten regulations on mortgage bond investments. On the other hand, restrictions on the purchase of preferred stocks may be relaxed. Preferred stocks issued by big corporations recently have been selling at high premiums—notably duPont and Continental Can.

BIRTH RATES

All nations have begun to inspect their birth rates. England and France are the most worried. But even Germany and Italy have not increased their populations in the ratios "demanded" by their dictators. France, of course, is on the decline. England is rapidly moving to a decline. Even now it is having difficulty filling its garrisons.

Russia is making the best gains in Europe. It gives the best care—all free by the government—to mothers and children.

Japan is not making such great gains as had been believed. Reason: Poor working and living conditions, undernourishment.

Australia and New Zealand seem to be making the best gains of the English-speaking peoples.

The United States? The recent census estimates (they were estimates, not actual count) by the census bureau probably were high. The United States may reach a peak in population 15 years hence—unless more immigrants are admitted. The birth rate line is not far above the death line in many states.

FUTURE?

Then, what of the future?

That all depends on standards of living and how much medical aid governments will give their people.

Russia and Germany seem destined to be the most powerful countries in Europe, Japan (with China absorbed) in Asia, and the United States in between. Will the British dominions align themselves with the United States eventually if the mother country becomes weak and tottering?

Young America Asks—

How About Women Jurors?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

ARE women fit to serve on juries? Have they sufficient impersonal experience, emotional balance?

Doris F. Mosebach of Queens Village, L. I., doesn't believe they are or have. (N. B.—Doris's red hot phrases are all her own. For once we're not responsible.—E. R.)

"Dear Elsie—

"Jumping Jellyfish! What next! We have women governors, women senators, a woman Secretary of Labor (which is certainly a man's job) and now, in Ohio, they've taken the first step toward an all-woman jury by allowing eleven women and one man to try a murder suspect. WHAT CHANCE HAS THAT ONE POOR MAN AGAINST ELEVEN HECKLING HENS? Next they'll try to appoint an all-woman Supreme Court or elect a woman President! Heaven help us!

"Don't get me wrong, Elsie. I'll admit women may profit by public service, but they certainly should not be given authority yet, unless it is equally divided with men.

"Woman is wonderful in the home, she's proven herself pretty helpful in the business world, she's covered herself with glory in the literary world, and all in all she's making a darn good job of her 'equality.' But when it comes to all-women juries—let's not go completely haywire! If the cause of justice is to be preserved, let's stick to balanced juries. Why?

"BECAUSE WOMEN ARE TOO HIGH-STRUNG, OVER-EMOTIONAL, GIVEN TO SENTIMENT AND PREJUDICE; MORE APT TO REACT TO CROCODILE TEARS AND DRAMATIC FAINTINGS.

"Men too have their faults, but experience has given them balance and judgment. Take the two and balance them equally, and then you'll have an almost perfect jury. But an all-woman jury—horrors! The girls would get together in the back room and if they weren't all in perfect accord as to the verdict—pffh! a cyclone would be let loose."

Doris F. Mosebach—age 17,

That's a large mouthful, Doris, and it will certainly place you in the national spotlight. But, prepare for brickbats—if I know my human nature!

AND here's another that will make the welkin ring — but this time with feminine gratitude. WHY DOES "TEACHER" GET SICK OF HER JOB? MRS. SIDNEY MOORE OF MONTEZUMA, GEORGIA, tells why, in no uncertain terms.

"Dear Miss Robinson—

"Teaching is, undoubtedly, woman's favorite profession. Women admit that it is interesting, satisfying, not difficult, and in some states profitable. Then why do three-fourths of our teachers wish they were in some other occupation? Here's why—

"THE TEACHER IN THE SMALLISH TOWN IS SUBJECT TO THE MOST MINUTE SCRUTINY BY HER FELLOW CITIZENS — OF HER WARDROBE, HER LOVE AFFAIRS, HER CHURCH AFFILIATION, HER CHOICE OF FRIENDS, HER VISITORS, HER EXCURSIONS, HER HEALTH AND HER METHODS OF CLASS-ROOM DISCIPLINE.

"Sally the Steno puts her typewriter to bed at 5:30, dons her hat and saunters forth; her own woman. The teacher has just begun her day when she ushers her pupils out at 3:30. She is expected to prepare the Sunday school lesson, assist with programs, decorate halls, organize a Red Cross unit, harass the students into saving pennies, brushing teeth, drinking milk and selling tickets.

"She can't even have the private privileges granted to all other women workers. She mustn't smoke—is forced to buy her cigarets by proxy in the next town. She must not date a divorced man. She must not date the 'town catch' who, conscious of his uniqueness, is a bit wild.

"If she dresses well, wears a little make-up and goes to the hairdresser, she 'throws away her salary.' If she lives in the same sweater and skirt all winter, wears shell rims and banks her income, she is 'peculiar.' WHAT A JOB!"

Mrs. Sidney L. Moore, age 27,
Montezuma, Georgia.

Here's betting the Educational association votes you medals, my dear.

BUT now for the massacre! Who's first?

"SHOULD UNCLE SAM GIVE BONUSES TO ALL COLLEGE STUDENTS?" Recently Young America raised the roof with its pros and cons on that question. Here was one of the outstanding answers—and a grand record.

"Dear Elsie—

"I'm a graduate of Washington and Lee university, and I expect to prepare for the priesthood. In answer to Howard Anderson's letter I would say emphatically, DON'T SEND YOUNG PEOPLE TO COLLEGE WITH UNCLE SAM FOOTING THE BILLS!

"I worked my way through college, with a very little help, and I wouldn't give anything for the experience. I gave dancing, boxing and piano lessons... I cleaned yards and rugs for the townspeople... I coached in college subjects. I enjoyed every bit of it, and I'll never regret the effort. It was a tough grind; I had to sacrifice plenty to do it. But now I have the satisfaction of knowing that I did it.

"IT IS A PART OF OUR AMERICAN HERITAGE TO WORK FOR THE THINGS WE WANT.

"If a boy is working his way through college, he knows that he is footing the bills, and therefore any time he wastes is his own loss; he is not going to invest $4,000 in something and then waste his time. I believe that if college is made a charity affair, with Uncle Sam playing the role of Santa Claus, the scholastic standards will suffer accordingly."

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

To Go "Scot Free."

To go "scot free" is "to get away with" something, or, plunging deeper into the vernacular, "to pull a fast one" and escape punishment or penalty.

It is the last significance which comes close to the sense of the phrase in the days when it originated.

"Scot" is akin to the identical Anglo-Saxon word which denoted the tax, tribute or contribution which in times gone by each individual, as society was then constituted, had to pay or make to his immediate superior.

If a man, by fortune's favor, chanced to get off without delivering his due quota, he was said to be going "scot free."

The expression, altered in meaning but not in essence, has survived to our day.

Health Advice

—By DR. ROYAL COPELAND—

Breathing By Mouth Is a Symptom.

It isn't pleasant to look at a child who is the victim of mouth breathing. Often it is a habit and an undesirable habit at that. Too often it is neglected, and the child continues to be a mouth breather throughout his life.

It is a symptom associated with disorders of the upper air passages. For example, children who are mouth breathers frequently suffer from infections of the nose, throat, nasal sinuses and ears. They are usually underweight, irritable and backward in their growth and development.

Some children cannot help breathing through the mouth. Because of some nasal obstruction, they resort to this abnormal form of breathing.

It is wise to determine the cause of mouth breathing. Do not look upon it as merely a habit.

Among the common causes of mouth breathing we find enlarged tonsils and adenoids. Changes in the nose may be the cause of the obstruction in the nasal passages. Then nasal breathing is difficult.

Other Causes.

Chronic nasal sinusitis or chronic nasal catarrh will cause the youngster to breathe through the mouth rather than through the nose. Even adults are found to resort to mouth breathing because of some chronic disorder of the air passages.

Disturbances in the bronchial tubes, the wind pipes, may lead to mouth breathing. Sufferers from hay fever and asthma, if they are unable to obtain sufficient air through the nasal passages, resort to mouth breathing.

It will be seen that relief is possible only by the eradication of all those factors that necessitate this abnormal way of breathing.

Mouth breathing is a symptom that should never be neglected. If operation is needed, do not delay it. It is amazing to note the improvement in the child after his diseased and enlarged tonsils and adenoids have been removed. Shortly after the operation, these children begin to sleep better and show marked improvement in their physical development. What is even more astonishing are the rapid strides in their school work that follow the removal of all the obstacles to free breathing.

DAILY BIBLE THOUGHT

AN ATTENTIVE CONGREGATION: And Ezra the priest brought the law before the congregation both of men and women, and all that could hear with understanding, upon the first day of the seventh month. And he read therein before the street that was before the water gate from the morning until midday, before the men and the women, and those that could understand; and the ears of all the people were attentive unto the book of the law.—Nehemiah 8:2, 3.

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

DIARY: Up and talking to Ethel Roche who is leaving shortly for a cruise around the world, lucky lady. And Mrs. Henry Fonda called with the autograph book of a brave invalid girl in California. And came a comical note from Maury Paul, the newspapers' Cholly Knickerbocker.

Too, a letter from John T. McCutcheon which I cherish. This day I decided to subscribe for the Manchester Guardian after reading one of its exquisite editorials describing a country lane after a shower. Then over to the Waldorf bar and sat with Henry Sell awhile.

Out to dinner and came upon Dick Berlin and Dr. A. J. Cronin, the London phamphleteer who authored the deservedly best selling "The Citadel." And there was prittle-prattle of Hollywood, medicos and the charm of an English Spring. And I was struck with Dr. Cronin's resemblance to Sinclair Lewis, sandy hair and all.

Al Woods' haven for the stage struck—The Woods Academy of Modern Acting—opens at a time of waning interest in the stage and a pronounced eagerness to trek to the Hollywood studios. Al is a noble old Roman who believes flesh and blood performances will never die and launched his school in the 40's to prove it. He began with the Bowery hair-raisers and came up gradually to the elite audiences of Broadway. Unquestionably, he is dean of the melodrama.

While Woods snaffled sizable fortunes out of several hand-picked stars, his biggest gold mine was in the jovial commonness of the so-called bedroom farce. Their ribaldry seemed pretty hot a few years ago but today would not lift the most sensitive eyebrow. They dish out rawer stuff these days camouflaged as high art. "Amphitryon 38," for instance. As I recall Al Woods' biggest money making star was Julian Eltinge, for whom he named a theatre.

When Gil Boag—and where is he now?—occupied the shaky throne as Broadway's night club king, he had no rivals, no pretenders. But today the throne is divided among the roving-eyed Sherman Billings-ley, the dressy Jack Kriendler and poker-faced John Perona, proprietors of the Stork, "No. 21" and El Morocco respectively. Each struggles valiantly to capture and hold the mercurial crowds that enjoy greeting dawn with a hiccup. Billingsley gives favorite patrons $2.50 gold piece lucky charms. Peroma bestows costly mufflers and vanities, and Kriendler if need be, will give them his shirt. One week The Stork will be the magnet of nocturnal attraction, the next "No. 21," and still the next El Morocco, and so on, round and round. Until one day, as it will happen, someone with a new location and a new flock of ideas, wins the charmed circle. Nothing dies off so quickly as the popularity of a night club. For example: Montmartre, Tom Healy's at 66th, Bustanoby's Domino Room, Palais Royal, The Little Club and those Mayfair Saturday nights. And the once packed French Casino, which closed the other week over night.

To my notion no night club was ever so beglamoured as the Bustanoby Domino Room. A bandbox, seating not more than 75, all notable or notorious. It burgeoned during the Castle era. Dismond Jim usually wound up there with a Dolly sister on each arm. Mae Murry danced divinely with her latest beaux. A sprinkle of Ziegfeld charmers—Martha Mansfield, Kay Laurell and Olive Thomas. Mostly drink as to dance—and be seen!

...Bagatelles: Herbert Johnson, the political cartoonist, and the late Clare Briggs went through school together in Lincoln Neb. . . . Achmed Abdullah's Hollywood address is The Garden of Allah Hotel . . . Maurice Chevalier now and then serves an all-bean dinner to friends—kidney bean cocktail, black bean soup, baked pork and beans, string bean salad and such . . . Anthony Eden, painfully emaciated, is putting on poundage with milk and olive oil.

From a feature story: "Despite his years on Park avenue, McIntyre does not know one tea from another."

Is that so? There's store tea and sassafras.

Fairyland

All night long the sleet came down
And garnished every tree,
And every bush and every twig,
Is laced with filigree.

And silver threads and golden threads
Run out to catch the sun
In canopies of net and web
As if by spiders spun.

On bushes low small diamonds blink
In chains looped high and low,
Like little lights from fairyland
Across the sleet and snow.

And nowhere is a common thing,
Either large or small,
Unless it is my tulip bed,
Where nothing grows at all.

And I am in another world
Breathless at the sight
Of beauty caught, and fashioned so
In one short night.

JAPS FIND WAR GREATER THAN WAS INTENDED

Already Has Territory She Wanted, Writer Says, But Now Can't Quit.

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Writer)

NEW YORK—There is a Chinese adage that "he who rides a tiger finds it difficult to dismount."

The old-time philosopher who put a great truth thus quaintly might have been looking down through the centuries to the present dilemma of the Japanese invaders of China.

The island empire, having had a glorious ride of conquest on the Chinese tiger, now wants to dismount — and can't. In other words, having gained control of all the territory she desires for the moment, she wants to make peace with China, but thus far the celestials aren't having any.

Prefer Peace Now.

The forces of Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, while they have made gallant resistance in numerous instances, have taken a sound hiding. Still, they are continuing to fight is they retreat (or at least large numbers remain loyal) and so are compelling the Japanese to follow them out into the trials and tribulations of the hinterland, which is the last thing the Nipponese want to do.

Japan has bitten off a good deal more than she intended to do, and now she is unhappy about chewing it. Continuation of the war in the interior, far removed from bases easy of access, is costly—and Japan is hard pressed financially. She would prefer to consolidated her present gains in peace.

What Japan originally set out to do was conquer the five rich northern provinces — Hopeh, Chahar, Shantung, Shensi and Suiyuan. This country adjoins Japanese controlled Manchoukuo to the north and the two territories make a splendid prize almost a third the size of our continental United States.

Japan has virtually achieved her objective in the north, but while she was in the process of ironing out this zone, Shanghai exploded in her face. This unexpected development precipitated a new campaign which is forcing the mikado's forces to drive westward after the retreating Chinese.

Now it is the great walled city of Nanking, capital of the new China, which is being reduced. Soon it may be Hankow, much further southwest on one of the coils of the mighty Yangtze.

The Japanese war council has said that it will continue until the the Chinese are whipped. What the council would like to know is how long it will take to do the job.

ABOARD LINER

453 Rescued From Ship Steam Toward Manila Port.

MANILA—(AP)—The liner President McKinley picked 453 passengers from the stranded luxury ship President Hoover off two rocky islets today and steamed towards Manila.

A radio message from the McKinley's master said 134 cabin passengers and 319 third class passengers were taken from Hoishoto and Hayake islands, east of Formosa, where the Dollar liner Hoover piled on a reef last Friday midnight.

Captain E. Stepback of the German freighter Pruessen, first vessel to reach the $8,000,000 luxury liner, said the Hoover's condition was precarious because heavy seas rush in with such great force this season where she is grounded.

FOUR ALARMS

Three Minor Residence Fires Halted by Departments.

Winter weather had effects Saturday when the fire department answered four alarms, three at homes where blazes resulted from overheated furnaces and defective chimneys. There were no calls Sunday, however.

Companies No. 1 and 2 were called to the home of F. T. Wickersham, 25 North Weldon avenue, when an overheated furnace ignited the packing on a steam pipe. No. 1 was called to the home of James E. Hoff, 1016 Park avenue west where a minor blaze was caused by a defective chimney. The fire was extinguished without damage.

At the Fred R. Morgan residence, 222 East First street firemen said a defective chimney caused serious damage to the roof. No estimate of the loss was given. No. 1 also answered this alarm.

An automobile owned by Edward Evers, whose address was not given, suffered slight damage when a short circuit set it afire on North Mulberry street.

START WORK ON PLAN TO REVIVE G.O.P. STRENGTH

Committee Begins Selection of Group to Draft Slate of Party Principles.

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—The Republican executive committee undertook the thorny task of sorting 700 to 800 names for a program committee of 100—the men and women who will draft a declaration of principles designed to spur the once dominan party back to power.

From Former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, who will be 77 next month, to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, approaching 36, ranged the broad variety of the proposed personnel.

Chairman John D. M. Hamilton traveled here from Washington on a train due just before the 2:30 p. m. (3:30 E. S. T.) opening of the deliberations which, because of their magnitude and delicacy, may require several days. Twenty-one of the executive group of 28 were expected.

See Factional Fight.

Behind the spokesman and their formal language lay the cleavage among those Republicans who look to Alf M. Landon for leadership and those who place first the counsel of Herbert Hoover.

Earl Warren, California committeeman, surveying the many famous figures suggested for membership, said: "You can't wish men into a position of leadership in a party. The public picks its own leaders." As a corollary, Warren observed that regardless of any "withdrawal" statements that might be made by Landon and Hoover they nevertheless always would be identified in the public mind with the party. He said he would not like to see the party deprived of their advice for appearances sake.

"I think we will decide the whole destiny of our party in choosing members of the steering committee, particularly in the selection of a chairman. If the committee is to mean anything it must represent every honorable interest in the nation and that means all groups from organized labor to big business. The committee must be chosen on a basis of brains not geography," he said.

Warren's last sentence was echoed by Mrs. John E. Hillman, Colorado committeewoman.

Senator Capper (R.-Kans.) said in a Washington radiocast that Landon, who Friday counted himself out of the 1940 presidential race, "now is in a position to lead the Republican party councils."

Landon has opposed a 1938 midterm Republican convention while Hoover has advocated it. Hoover said in a Boston address "I do not want any public office." Hoover speaks again in Chicago Thursday while Landon, now in Washington, expects to visit New York friends.

JAPANESE ADMIT SINKING GUNBOAT

craft proceed to the scene, or bring the wounded to Shanghai, they will not be attacked."

Reports that the 12 Europeans and others, presumably officers and the remainder of the Panay crew, were seen on the left bank of the Yangtze above Nanking, alleviated fear that at least 18 American lives might have been lost.

British Boat at Scene.

The report was made by the British gunboat Bee to the American flagship, the cruiser Augusta at Shanghai.

The Bee, apparently the first rescue ship to reach the scene, said she had taken aboard Vernon F. Puckett, chief petty officer, on one of three Standard Oil vessels attacked; J. V. Pickering of Cadiz, O., acting manager of the Standard Oil's Nanking branch, and Stoker William T. Hoyle.

The men, picked up near Hohsien, where 54 survivors of the Panay disaster were taken, said they had seen the Europeans on the river bank.

The Bee thus far had been unable to locate the reported survivors but continued the search throughout the night, remaining in the vicinity of the Kaiyuan wharf at Hohsien.

Wounded at Hohsien.

The other Panay survivors at Hohsien, a small Chinese river town in the center of a battle between Japanese and Chinese, included 15 wounded, several seriously.

They were taken ashore there amid great danger from artillery and gun fire but a Japanese spokesman said urgent messages to Japanese forces had halted the attack to enable rescuers to tend the survivors without the peril of bursting shells.

The American gunboat Oahu, sister ship of the Panay, and a Japanese minesweeper also were steaming at full speed to the rescue.

British officials quoted a Japanese spokesman as saying he had orders to "fire on every ship on the river."

Japs Capture Pukow.

A Japanese army communique, meanwhile, reported the capture of Pukow, across the Yangtze from Nanking, last midnight. It declared Japanese possession of Pukow cut off all retreat from Nanking except by boat up the river.

Under the circumstances, Japanese added, all foreign ships were warned to keep away from Chinese vessels to avoid danger. They said, however, they had no authority to say whether Japanese artillery was under orders to fire on any ships on the river.

How many refugees were aboard the Standard Oil vessels was not known.

(Official reports to Washington said three Standard Oil ships were sunk, all with refugees aboard of whom there were not full reports.)

One Beached, Two Sunk.

Apparently the Standard Oil's 900-ton general cargo carrier, commanded by an American, Capt. C. H. Carlson, was struck by a bomb on its bridge and beached while the other two, the 1,000-ton steel tankers Meiping and Meinsia burned and sank.

Besides accepting responsibility and offering apologies, Admiral Kiyoshi Kasegawa, commander of the Japanese fleet in Chinese waters, was understood to have guaranteed full indemnity for the loss of the Panay and the Merchantmen.

He was reported to have informed Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, the American commander, that he was certain the Japanese government would make full reparations.

(In Tokyo, meanwhile, Foreign Minister Koki Hirota expressed "profoundest apologies" for the disaster. News of the Panay incident was suppressed in Japan.

Japs Claim Nanking Capture After Bloody Street Fighting

SHANGHAI—(AP)—The Japanese military command tonight officially announced occupation of Nanking, China's capital.

The troops completed the occupation at sunset, the announcement said.

Bloody street fighting, with Chinese contesting every foot of the Japanese advance, marked the battle for the city, Japanese said. Slowly, however, they reported, they took over government buildings which had housed Chinese machine-gun nests and snipers.

Naval planes co-operated with the army in the day-long attack, and the Chinese defenders were said to have been driven northward through the city as the Japanese pressed from the southern and eastern sections

(The Japanese began their march to Nanking when domination of Shanghai was assured on Nov. 9 by the Chinese retreat to their "Hindenburg line." This line, 50 miles west of Shanghai, was to have been the Chinese winter defense. Japanese, however, thrust through it and ended the 190 miles march to the edges of Nanking last Monday.)

6 Convicts Wait Murder Trials In Stabbing of Guard

KILL HOSTAGE IN ATTEMPTED PRISON BREAK

Prisoners Use Knives Made From Scissors to Murder Carolina Officer.

COLUMBIA, S. C.—(AP)—Six desperate convicts who seized a guard captain as hostage and stabbed him to death rather than surrender to Gov. Olin D. Johnston, were locked under iron guard today while threatening crowds milled about the state penitentiary.

The prisoners, all long-term convicts, broke into the office of J. Olin Sanders, captain of the prison guard yesterday, and cowed the 61-year-old officer with a gun which was revealed later to have been an imitation of ingenious design. The men were also armed with several homemade knives fashioned from scissors stolen from the prison tailor shop.

Governor Takes Charge.

Assistants spread the alarm to the governor's mansion nearby and after summoning guardsmen and state police he went to the prison to take charge.

With tear and nauseating gas ready, prison officers and guardsmen stalled the convicts while "negotiations" for Sanders' release progressed. The prisoners ordered Sanders to issue orders for their release, demanding an automobile and escort from the penitentiary. Sanders refused and was stabbed.

Word of the attempted break spread through the county where Sanders, father of five children, was widely known. One detachment of soldiers was assigned to handle the crowds that surrounded the penitentiary walls. No disorders were reported.

Confesses Stabbing.

Sheriff T. Alex Heise of Richmond (Columbia) county said that William Woods, alleged leader of the prisoners, who is serving ten years for highway robbery and larceny, confessed to the stabbing. He admitted today after hours of questioning that he plunged the weapon, an iron bar filed to a rapier point, into Sanders' back five times. He said the others, their scissors-blades ready, held Sanders.

The stabbing climaxed three hours of "bargaining" during which Gov. Johnston and a score of state and county officials begged the men to release their prisoner.

Finally the governor shouted his ultimatum, warning the barricaded prisoners that they would be "gassed out."

On a signal, tear gas followed by nauseating gas was hurled through the windows. At this point, it was believed, the gas-crazed convicts, realizing they were trapped, carried out their threats against Sanders. He was unconscious when other officers reached him after a series of gas attacks forced the prisoners out.

Push Program To Infuse New Blood In G. O. P. Ranks

COVINGTON, Ky. — (AP) — A group of young Ohio and Kentucky Republicans, together with a few anti-New Deal Democrats, pushed their part of a program today to "infuse new blood" into the national Republican party.

The group, members of the First Voters' league, awaited the national Republican committee's reaction to a proposal of a committee of 12 league members to appoint 15 persons, including Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, to the party's projected steering committee at a meeting in St. Louis.

David Ringo, a 25-year-old civil engineer who is chairman of the Ohio-Kentucky division of the league, declared today "we want something progressive done."

"We're a bunch of young fellows who aren't satisfied with the way the Republican party is running its affairs," he said.

The committee of 12, headed by Alfred M. Lilienthal of New York, sent its proposal to the executive unit of the Republican national committee last night.

LOOT 2 PLACES

Thieves Enter Filling Station, Salvation Army, Get $105.

Police today were investigating the week-end burglary of two downtown establishments, both within two blocks of the police station, which were broken into and looted of merchandise and cash totaling $105.

At Diemer's filling station, 91 South Main street, burglars entered through a rear window last night, broke open a cigaret machine and carried off cigarets and change estimated at $33.

The theft was reported to police by Gerald Kirkpatrick, 55 Henry street, who opened the station at 6:30 a. m. and found the battered machine on the floor. Police said two automobiles parked on the wash rack also had been looted.

At the Salvation Army, 47 South Main street, Lieut. Raymond L. Raines reported that his office had been entered Saturday night and a trumpet valued at $72 taken. He said an overcoat containing his billfold and $5 in bills also was missing.

'SACK BANDIT' ROBS 4 MORE

MARION — (AP) — The "sack bandit," who for more than two months has terrorized northwestern Ohio filling station attendants, added two more to his list last night with robberies at Marion and Upper Sandusky.

He took $15 from a filling station here, added 30 cents to his loot by robbing two boys who happened to be present, and held up a station two hours later at Upper Sandusky, 20 miles to the north.

As in the 15 previous robberies attributed to him, the shotgun-wielding holdup man more a hood made of a burlap bag.

RUSSIA VOTES IN PARLIAMENT

90 Million Electors March to Polls to Ballot on New Government Unit.

MOSCOW — (AP) — Soviet Russia had a Stalinist parliament today, elected by a turnout, apparently, of virtually all the nation's 90 million voters in the first secret direct election in the 20 years of the communist regime.

The election commission announced preliminary reports indicated at least 95 per cent of the eligible voters went to the polls.

Few candidates for the 1,143 seats in the two-chamber parliament were opposed. There was no early tabulation of returns or announcement of results, even in what few districts might have had contests among candidates equally loyal to the regime of Joseph Stalin.

Bands played and red banners fluttered during yesterday's voting. Trucks and cars slid through Moscow's streets throughout the day, taking aged, infirm and sick voters to the polls. Polling places were fitted up with chess boards, lunch counters and even orchestras. Nurseries cared for children.

The electors in each district voted for two candidates—one for the Soviet of the Union and the other for the Soviet of Nationalities. The two new bodies correspond roughly to the United States house of representatives and senate.

80 FLEE FROM GRANGE DINNER AS FIRE DESTROYS ADARIO HALL

Nearly 80 members of the Richland County Pomona Grange club fled to safety Saturday afternoon when fire, believed to have started from an overheated furnace, leveled the Butler township hall at Adario. The loss, which was covered by insurance, was estimated at $3,300 by township trustees.

Discovered in the basement of the building about 1:45 p. m., by P. G. Krichbaum, township clerk, the flames had gained such headway that scores of on-lookers were powerless to save the frame building.

A bucket brigade was formed and the fire was prevented from spreading to two school buildings nearby. With a well near the school as the only source of water supply, villagers were handicapped in their fire fighting. Several men were forced to climb to the roofs of the school buildings to extinguish the fires as they started from flying sparks.

The fire broke out soon after the county Grange members had been seated for a dinner preceding their meeting. Although the flames threatened collapse of the floor, the crowd filed out in an orderly manner, Arthur Mellick, county Grange deputy, said.

Most of the furniture and township records in the hall were carried out before the building caved in.

Krichbaum discovered the fire when he went to the basement to see why the room was so warm. The furnace in the hall had been installed only recently and the building was remodeled not long ago, Mellick said.

The interrupted Grange meeting was postponed to the third Saturday in January at Shenandoah.

QUICK PASSAGE SEEN FOR BILL TO AID NEEDY

Program, Passed by House, to Provide $3,500,000 For December Relief Costs.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The Ohio senate prepared to rush a $3,500,000 December poor relief program to Gov. Martin L. Devey today, with a permanent aid to the indigent plan and appropriation of funds to keep various state departments operating as primary objectives yet to be acted on in the special session.

Some observers predicted the senate would add its approval quickly to that of the house given previously to four bills designed to assist counties and municipalities to care for their needy.

(Hatchet Men) Wait.

Whether Lieut. Gov. Paul P. Yoder and his self-styled "hatchet men" would oppose passage of the measures and kill the stopgap effort remained to be seen at the senate's evening session.

The four bills passed by the house last week would:

Take $1,000,000 from the general revenue fund and allocate it to local governments on the basis of need, the funds to be deducted from 1938 allocations;

Authorize issuance of notes by county commissioners against anticipated utilities excise tax collection surpluses;

Permit 58 counties to use 1937 relief fund balances now unavailable through a court decision, and

Other than proposal of two divergent permanent relief plans by Gov. Martin L. Davey and an unofficial joint legislative committee, the only action toward 1938 aid to the needy was approval by the House Taxation committee of two bills.

One would permit approval of special levies for poor relief by a 55 per cent affirmative vote instead of the present 65 per cent requirement and the other would take $6,500,000 from sales tax income for relief.

Several state departments have reduced personnel and other expenses awaiting appropriation of additional funds as a supplemental budget, included in Governor Davey's call for the special session.

Youngstown Physician Testifies At Ohio Parole Probe.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Dr. C. A. Haefner, Youngstown physician, was the first witness today before Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy's special grand jury investigating irregularities in the state parole system.

News photographers who took Dr. Haefner's picture as he left the grand jury room, after testifying for about 20 minutes, were ordered by the attorney general to destroy their negatives. He did not explain the reason for his demand.

State Senator N. A. Wilcox of Geneva, brother-in-law of Dr. Haefner, told newsmen that Haefner was in poor health. The physician's eyes were blurred with tears as he left the grand jury.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

The Mellon Vindication.

IT, OF COURSE, makes no difference to Mr. Mellon now, but it does seem that the administration officials responsible for the criminal proceedings against him, recently declared wholly unfounded by the United States Board of Tax Appeals, would want to make some sort of public apology before the whole episode is forgotten.

NATURALLY, it is too late to be of any benefit to Mr. Mellon, but one would think that their own self-respect would make some sort of gesture imperative. It isn't necessary to have been an admirer of Mr. Mellon's, either personally or politically, a "creature of Wall Street" or a member of the bungling old Liberty league, to feel indignation at the sort of thing attempted against him and which, after three years of testimony and argument, has now been labeled "entirely unjustifiable" by a commission which, if prejudiced at all, certainly would not be prejudiced in his favor.

IT IS almost impossible to read the record in this extraordinary case without concluding that the real motive back of it was political. The charge was made that Mr. Mellon had attempted to defraud the government. In effect, branding him as a tax dodger and a crook, the attorney general, supported by the secretary of the treasury, tried to secure a criminal indictment from a grand jury. It was charged by Mr. Mellon—and the facts bore out the charge—that he was not accorded the same treatment as other taxpayers and to which he was entitled under the rules. The usual notice of deficiency was not given him; he had no chance to file a protest and was not accorded a hearing. "I want," said Mr. Mellon on May 4, 1934, "no adjustment of my taxes not entirely within my legal rights. But, most important of all, I want an end put to the long campaign of vilification that has been carried on and my name cleared of the unwarranted charges the attorney general has brought against me." On another occasion he said. "I would rather spend my remaining days in jail than submit to such tyranny."

—THOUGH THE grand jury refused to indict Mr. Mellon and the government had to drop its criminal charges, it pursued to the bitter end its case for the recovery of more than $3,000,000 in taxes claimed. Now, three months after his death and three years after the charges were made, the government's own tribunal vindicates Mr. Mellon of any fraudulent intent and reduces the amount of taxes in question to $700,000—and that is disputed. The real point is that he is acquitted wholly of any suspicion of dishonesty, and that is the thing that ought to make the men who emphasized the criminal side of the charges feel ashamed. Certainly, neither the attorney general nor the secretary of the treasury can be proud of the part they had in this persecution. It was evident to every discriminating person at the time that the criminal charges against Mr. Mellon fitted in with the administration political strategy of arousing class feeling in the country. And it should have been evident to everyone able to think at all that even if Mr. Mellon were utterly destitute of decency, he would hardly be fool enought to be dishonest about his income tax.

TO BELIEVE that an 80-year-old man, who was busy giving away millions of dollars and who had so many millions that they had ceased to have any meaning for him, would stoop to that kind of stupidity was to believe that he and his lawyers were not only crooked but crazy. Yet the fact is that because of the administration propaganda and ballyhoo in presenting the charges, undoubtedly a good many unthinking people did think Mr. Mellon guilty.

NOW THAT HIS innocence has been officially established one would think that the officials who made the criminal charge might want to say something in justification of this shocking business—if there is anything to say. Or that the president might. Only the completely credulous believe that the attorney general, a notoriously cautious man, would have launched so dramatic an attack without the approval of his chief. It just isn't done. Perhaps there are those who expected from the president some expression of gratification that Mr. Mellon's reputation has been cleared. But neither from him nor from anyone connected with him has come such a word. It has been ten days since the decision was made and no word has come. Obviously now none ever will come. Asked last week at his press conference if he had anything to say about the vindication of Mr. Mellon, Mr. Roosevelt said, "I haven't read the board's decision." That's all. For sheer callousness the whole performance is without a parallel.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The late stage producer Winthrop Ames influenced many a career now bright in Hollywood, but perhaps none more strangly than Frieda Iuescort's.

It was Ames who gave Miss Inescort her first theatrical role—in "The Truth About Blayd's" 15 years ago. She was the ingenue, Leslie Howard leading man.

Ames had known Miss Inescort's mother on the English stage, had met Frieda when she was a little girl attending her first stage play, a Christmas production. The little girl, grown up, was working in a shipping news office and wanting more money. She thought she could earn it in the theater, and she went to Ames. Whether believing her story that she was an actress or not, he put her in his play. She must have been sensational — an ingenue without curly golden hair at a time when all ingenues had to be curly and golden and blue-eyed.

* * *

Miss Inescort, today an established film actress and one of Hollywood's brightest off-screen perosnalities, too, recalls with humor her first dress rehearsal. She had put on her own make-up, and very liberally. She walked on the stage, only to hear Winthrop Ames' gentle voice: "Splendid, child! You're pretty—very pretty. You look—exactly like an actress. Now go back and try again!"

"Portia on Trial" is Frieda Inescort's first screen starring role, although she was a particularly bright name in the theater before coming to Hollywood two years ago. She broke precedent, for stage stars, by essaying pictures through minor roles at first—in "The Dark Angel" and several other films before reaching real featured status in "Call It a Day." She did it that way, I'm sure, because so many people told her it couldn't be done. She seems to get deep personal satisfaction from little experiments like that.

* * *

In New York, for instance, she was always following the unorthodox procedude, for an actress, of holding a daytime job outside the theater. She kept her office position even after "The Truth About Blayd's" was a success, and later—during the runs of subsequent hits—she was employed first in an interior decorating establishment and then in the book publishing firm where she was to meet Ben Ray Redman, the writer who is now her husband.

"I simply had nothing to do in the daytime," she explains. "I knew no one in the theater, and all my other friends were working. So I had to find a job, too—to keep out of mischief."

Between pictures now she "keeps out of mischief" by knitting — actually!— and keeping house and gardening. The Redmans live in a secluded, comfortable old house hidden by trees and shrubbery on an acre or two that is right in the heart of Hollywood.

INTERESTING to her many personal friends and business associates is the announcement that on New Year's Day Miss Frances Thull, 189 Hedges street, will marry Edward B. Eagan of Cleveland. The announcement was made Saturday noon at a luncheon bridge at the Mansfield-Leland hotel at which the Misses Margaret and Marie Thull, sisters of the bride-elect, presided as hostesses. The table was almost covered with ferns, gold pompons and stevia, and there were two low, flat arrangements of gold poms and stevia. The table was outlined with 25 individual corsages of the same flowers, which served as favors. Attached to each corsage with a small gold cord, was a miniature white book, which carried the names of Miss Thull and Mr. Eagan, and the date, Jan. 1. The wedding will be solemnized at the parish house of St. Peter's Catholic church.

After the luncheon six tables of bridge were in play, with score prizes going to Miss Isabel Gerstmyer and Miss Alyce Vahar, who presented them to the honor guest. A series of parties is being arranged for Miss Thull during the holidays.

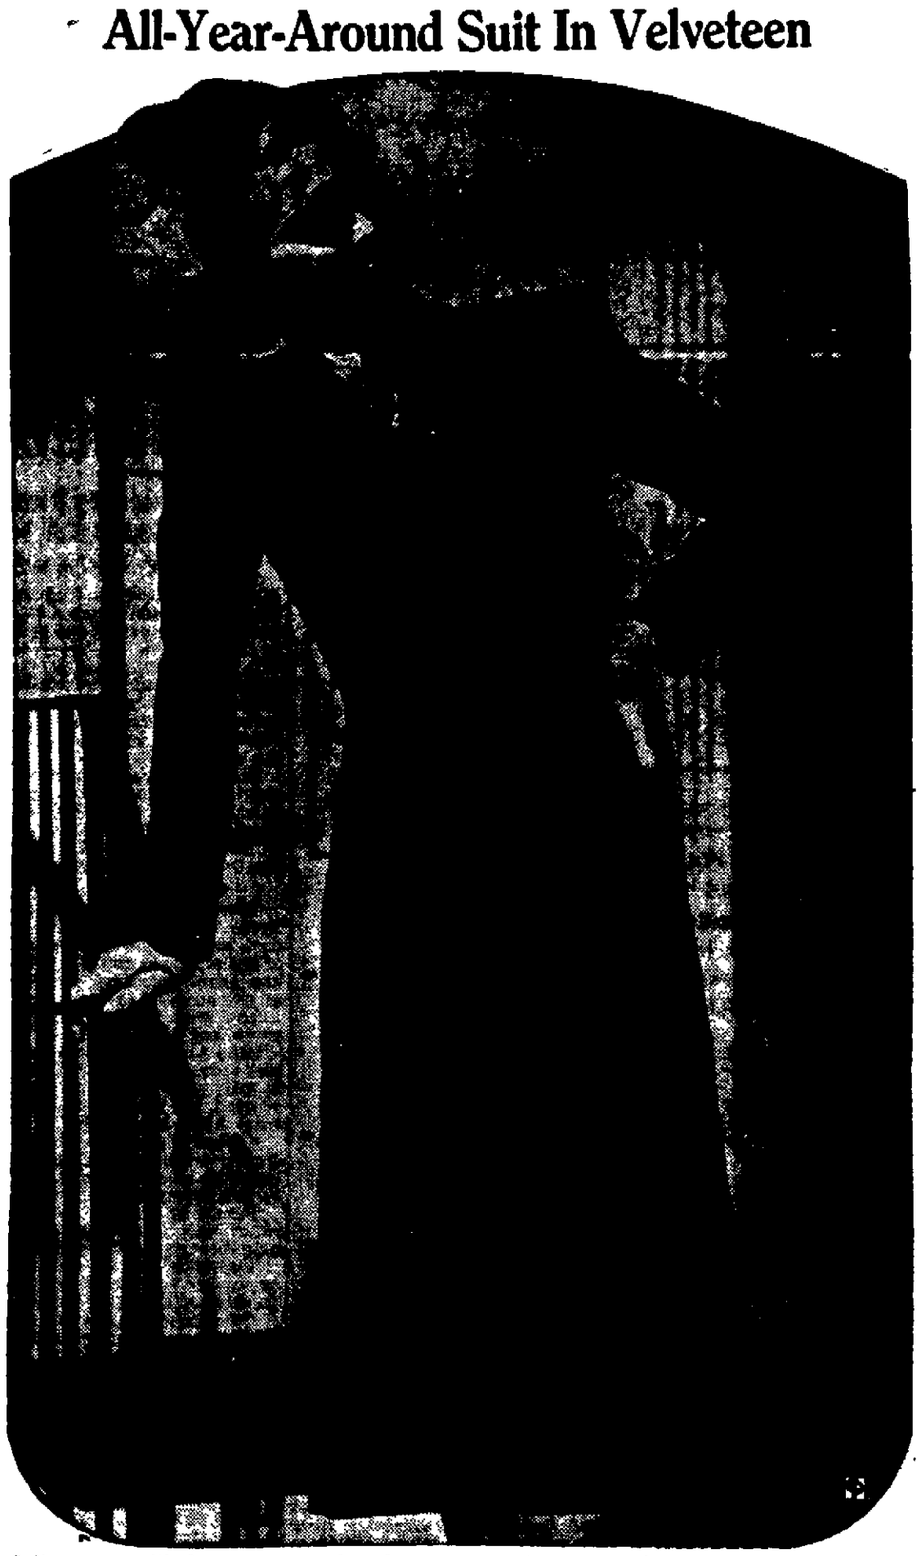
SOCIETY & CLUBS

All-Year-Around Suit In Velveteen



Suits are positively year around favorites, and so with the wise woman there is always one modish suit in the wardrobe for the dozens of events in her busy life. Perhaps it is the versatility of such outfits that makes them go everywhere on virtually everybody. This clever little suit shown above is made of gray velveteen. The jacket is short, the shoulders nicely squared, and the sleeves long and plain. The small rolled collar is new looking, and the leather covered fastenings quite exciting. A lame scarf is tucked into the neck, adding an attractive note. The season's favorite turban, which is high and peaked, completes this costume.
